Increase Of $2.5 Million

Des Plaines Budget Climbs To Record $12.2 Million

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

The Des Plaines city budget will increase about $2.5 million this year to a record $12.2 million.

Last year's total was $9,737,191.

Major budget increases include receipt of $830,000 in federal revenue sharing funds, a jump of $1.1 million in the library fund to finance a proposed building addition and pay raises for city officials and employes.

The council will discuss the proposed budget at an 8 p.m. committee of the whole meeting Thursday in city hall.

A preliminary budget, with estimated salaries for public works, police and fire employes, was released after Monday's council meeting.

Final budget approval is expected after the city completes wage negotiations with employes.

TWO MAJOR salary changes will shift the city attorney and treasurer from part to full-time positions.

The council voted 12 to 3 Monday to pay the city treasurer elected April 17 a $12,000 salary. Part-time city treasurer Irving Rateike received $5,500 last year.

The budget includes $68,412 for the city legal department. Last year's total was $56,450. Included in 1973 is $15,000 for a full-time attorney, $8,037 for a secretary and $3,500 for office furniture.

Largest salary boost was a jump from $20,000 to $25,000 a year for the mayor. The last mayoral pay hike was in 1969. The increase, effective May 1 after the city election, will set the mayor's salary for four years.

Mayor Herbert Behrel, who is seeking fifth-term reelection, did not participate in council discussion last month of the pay hikes for elected officials.

Other salary boosts include: City clerk from $10,500 to $13,500; building commissioner from $17,057 to $18,765; engineering director from $20,695 to $22,146; fire chief from $21,356 to $22,430 and police chief from $21,425 to $22,483.

CHANGES that affect the city tax levy include:

• Budgeting of $22,000 for a special city census. The council authorized payment of $8,080 to the U.S. Census Bureau Monday as a census downpayment. The census, which may boost city population over 60,000, is expected in 60 to 90 days.

• An increase in office rental fees from $18,200 to $35,000. The 1973 total includes temporary rent for mayor's, city clerk's and health department offices during construction of a proposed $1.2 million city hall.

• Budgeting of $1,000 for expenses of the city Environmental Control Commission. Although the council approved an ordinance forming the commission early last year, Behrel has not appointed commission members.

• Elimination of funds for land acquisition. The city budgeted $105,000 last year to purchase office space and downtown redevelopment property.

• Two garbage disposal changes that boost the total fund about $20,000. The proposed budget shows a drop from $135,000 to $80,000 for garbage disposal costs. But, the fund also includes an increase of $72,500 for purchase of refuse sacks and holders.

Estimated receipt of $830,500 in federal revenue sharing funds will allow the city to complete flood prevention sewer work in 1973 without increasing the tax levy.

The proposed budget shows 12 sewer projects scheduled for completion by June 30, 1974 to be funded through revenue sharing. The council last month approved the projects, which include $110,000 for citywide back-up valves, $140,000 for an Oakton Street retention pond and $360,000 for sewer separation.

CITY COMPTROLLER Duane Blietz, estimated receipt of motor fuel tax funds will be $1,049,220, an increase of $181,000.

The motor fuel tax funds will finance resurfacing of streets and gutter replacement ($200,000), improvement of Jarvis Street west of Lake Opeka ($30,000), curb and gutter installation on Lee Street from Oakton to Touhy ($130,000), connection of Mill Street to River Street ($45,000), realignment of Prairie Avenue ($250,000) and partial financing of the Miner Street overpass ($127,500).

The budget will include about $4.1 million for employes' salaries.

Fifteen new posts will be added including two policemen, a fireman, two foresters, a police lieutenant and a civil engineer.

Estimated police department budget will be more than $1.5 million, an increase from $1.36 in 1972. The fire department budget will be about $1.14 million, up from $1.08 million in 1972.

The library budget increased from $383,425 in 1972 to $1,422,100 this year because of the proposed expansion. Listed in the budget is a salary hike for the head librarian from $13,500 to $16,000, about $869,765 for construction, $63,735 for new equipment, $60,000 to purchase land and $65,500 for debt service.

Construction of the 19,000-square-foot addition, which will double library space and increase book capacity to 190,000 volumes, is expected this spring with completion scheduled for fall.

BEHREL SAID yesterday, at his weekly press conference, that "that's only a proposed budget. It can be slashed appreciably by meeting with the aldermen. This may happen. Nobody knows what's going to happen with salaries."

The 1973 budget will not affect tax bills this spring. Behrel has predicted a drop in the Des Plaines levy of 9 to 10 cents.

Des Plaines requested $2,763,006 in tax revenue last fall. Projected increases in the city's assessed valuation should drop this year's levy to 81.4 cents, Blietz has predicted.

Blietz told the Herald yesterday that increases in the city's $339 million assessed valuation this year and use of revenue funds for major projects could offset 1973 wage hikes and avoid a tax hike next year.

Not listed in the proposed budget are possible purchase of the United Motor Coach Co. bus line and construction of a $2.25 civic center to be financed through bonds.

POM PON GIRLS of Maine West High School in Des Plaines perform during the halftime of all home varsity football, basketball and hockey games. There are 20 girls in the squad from sophomore, junior and senior classes.

Local Man Charged By Florida Cops

Special to the Herald

A Des Plaines man was arraigned on charges of assault with intent to commit murder, armed robbery and auto theft following his arrest north of Daytona Beach, Fla., Monday night.

Hubert Francis Nealis, 32, of 221 Good Ave., remains in Volusia County jail after he allegedly beat an elderly Pennsylvania vacationer, Charles Doisseau, early Monday evening and fled in the man's car.

Nealis was arrested about an hour later some 50 miles from the town by Florida highway patrolment.

Capt. Fred Perrin of the Daytona Beach police department said he would not reveal additional details surrounding the incident because Doisseau, is still hospitalized in fair condition.

It was uncertain how long Nealis had been in the Daytona area. If convicted, he could receive a maximum life prison sentence for the robbery and assault counts.

Des Plaines police said yesterday they still have an active warrant for Nealis' arrest on a charge of deceptive practices at Zayre's Department Store, 727 W. Golf Rd., Des Plaines in 1971.

Des Plaines police Lt. Lee Alfano said Nealis would probably not be extradited to face arrest here because of the seriousness of the charges brought against him in Florida.

"The bond set against him here was only $1,000," Alfano added. "And if he is convicted on the felony charges, we wouldn't be able to extradite him."

Bond for Nealis on the Florida charges has been set at $21,500.

Thief Gets Cash At St. Zachary's

An undetermined amount of money was reported missing Monday from St. Zachary's Church, 567 W. Algonquin Rd.

According to police reports, several thefts have been occurring for the last few months from the church's collection box.

So far, police said $62 in checks has been recovered near the church from the stolen funds.

Friendship Junior High Falls Farther Behind Schedule

Construction on Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines is further behind schedule, and the architect cannot say when the school will be ready.

Grant Terrell, chief project representative for the district's architect, told the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 board Monday night that more construction time has been lost in the last 30 days: "I cannot tell you it will be completed by June 1," said Terrell. Board members were less than happy with the architect's report. They want the building finished by June 1 so summer school classes can be held there.

Terrell said the delays were caused by the general contractor, Al Berg, failing to keep promises he (Berg) had made to the board and the architect.

Berg was not at the meeting Monday. The board ordered the meeting continued to last night, requesting that Berg, Terrell and the board's attorney, Frank Hines, attend.

Board members asked Terrell about the possibility of starting litigation against Berg or changing contractors.

TERRELL SAID he would not advise litigation without serious consideration. He said changing contractors, "would be the last thing I would recommend."

At the Dec. 18 board meeting, Berg presented a revised construction schedule which would have the school ready for the 1973 summer session. He said construction had been delayed by bad weather. If mild weather occurred, masons could finish exterior walls, and roofing could be installed. Interior work could then begin, according to Berg.

At Monday's meeting, Terrell said Berg had fired his masonry foreman Dec. 26 and most of the workers then quit. New workers have been hired, but not as many as were employed prior to Dec. 26.

Terrell said he had reviewed the construction schedule and found, "it was not factual." He said it called for interior work to be done before walls and roofing had been finished.

A meeting with Berg, Terrell, other subcontractors on the job and school officials was scheduled for yesterday morning. School officials could not be reached for comment on the meeting.

School Board Petitions Available

Nominating petitions for the three positions on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 School Board up for election April 17 will be accepted at the district office between Feb. 28 and March 23.

The school board approved permission to publish a legal notice on accepting the petitions during the Monday night portion of the board meeting. The board adjourned to last night for discussion on the construction delays at Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines.

In other action at the Monday night meeting:

• James Erviti, superintendent of Dist. 59, was designated as the person responsible for preparing the district's tentative budget for the 1973-74 school year. The appointment is a formal one, required by law.

• Erwin Stevenson, assistant superintendent of curriculum, presented a report on the curriculum review committees.

• A six-month financial report, ending Dec. 31, was presented to the board. Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration, said the "financial statements appear to be normal."

• Board members Allen Sparks, Al Domanico and Gerald Smiley were appointed to the board's budget committee.

• Board members Domanico and Erwin Poklacki were appointed to the board's teacher negotiations committee.

O'Hare Crash Hearing Will Begin Today

Public hearings into the cause of the runway collision of two passenger jets at O'Hare Airport that killed 10 persons Dec. 20 open at 9 a.m. today at the Sheraton O'Hare Hotel in Des Plaines.

The National Transportation Safety Board will be in charge of the hearings. Louis M. Thayer of the NTSB will act as chairman of the board of inquiry that is scheduled to hear 38 witnesses.

The hearing is expected to last three days, however, one official said it may take longer depending on the testimony of the witnesses.

Parties to the hearing will include officials from the Federal Aviation Administration, the two airlines involved in the crash, the Air Line Pilots Association, the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization and the National Weather Service.

Passengers who survived the crash are also expected to appear before the board to give an account of what happened from their point of view, said one NTSB official.

In the collision, a North Central Airlines DC-9 apparently struck a Delta Airlines Convair 880 while taking off in fog. Following the crash an FAA spokesman said one of the planes was in the wrong place at the wrong time.

When Pinch Forces Cutbacks...

Energy Break For Little Guy

Residential customers and other small power consumers enjoy favored status when the energy pinch forces utilities to dish out power on a selective basis.

As power cutbacks and announcements of impending power shortages continue, these small power users can count the Federal Power Commission on their side in the scramble for energy supplies. The commission is proposing that all large industrial customers of the natural gas utilities be on an "interruptible" status when the supplies are running low, and has asked for comment on the issue through a deadline of Feb. 28.

The federal agency contends that power should be allocated first to customers least able to make the transition to alternate fuels. This is the type of plan effected by Northern Illinois Gas Co. and Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co., both serving northern Illinois. Interruptible customers, usually large industrial or commercial concerns, can be cut off during a power shortage period under the plans.

THE MOST RECENT action to alleviate a gas shortage for regular customers in this area was taken last week by NI-Gas. The utility announced that it plans further curtailment of gas service to large industrial and commercial customers.

NI-Gas seeks to limit new gas customers to 100 therms of heat a day. The previous limit was 800 therms. A load of 100 therms is equivalent to heating five homes on a mid-winter day.

The power crunch is moving closer to the Chicago metropolitan area. A shortage of fuel oil in Rockford may force some two dozen schools and other institutions to shut down unless added supplies can be found, said a local supplier.

Standard Oil Co. announced on Monday that it will cut back fuel supplies to state governmental and industrial agencies by 20 per cent during January and February in the Peoria area. Ozark Airlines, Caterpillar Co., the Pabst Brewery and the Peoria Mass Transit System were among those immediately affected.

TRAINS WILL move more slowly and operational changes will have to be made to avoid a serious power supply problem throughout the state Illinois by this spring, said Standard officials.

Robert Connor, regional director of the federal Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP) for Illinois and several other states, said low energy reserves remain a problem in the Midwest this week. Minneapolis and Milwaukee are additional areas experiencing power shortages, he said.

"Nothing right now indicates the situation is getting any worse for fuel oil," said Connor. "Of course, there is still the propane problem in southern Illinois."

Phase III regulations may allow power suppliers to pass along more of their costs to consumers and thus boost supplies, said Connor. "And frankly, the last two or three days of warm weather have helped a tremendous amount," he said. OEP is working with state agencies to find new power supplies as the needs develop.

Mailing Further Clouds Cook County Wheel Tax Problem

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The already muddied waters surrounding the entire Cook County "wheel tax" were agitated again last week when thousands of applications for the county's answer to village vehicle stickers were sent through the mails.

The agitation undoubtedly will change to further aggravation for the recipients when they learn the application was sent to them only because they paid the tax last year — an act more than a few regret.

The displeasure on the part of automobile owners in all unincorporated areas of the county, certainly, is amplified by the confusion in which the on-again, off-again tax is being administered. And, worse yet, it may be hard to understand why the county is sending out "bills" for a tax that has been ruled unconstitutional.

A review of the history of the tax may help lessen the confusion.

The wheel tax ordinance was adopted by the county board Dec. 30, 1971 after it was submitted by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne. It established a tax of $5 per year for motorcycles and motor bikes; $10 per year for cars with less than 35 rated horsepower; and $15 for cars with more than 35 rated horsepower. Trucks are taxed on a sliding scale ranging from $15 to $95 per year.

ALTHOUGH IT was to be effective Jan. 1, 1972, Dunne reported early in January the stickers had not been printed and would not be required until the date state license plates were required. "Until then," a spokesman for Dunne said, "don't worry about it."

But many people did worry about it — namely the residents of just about every unincorporated area of the county. And, during the month of February they went one step further, starting a foundation of opposition to the tax by organizing homeowner groups in the affected areas.

In the meantime, County Treasurer Bernard Korzen announced the applications for the stickers would be available after Feb 17 — two days after the new state license plates were required. The deadline for the sticker was extended to May 15.

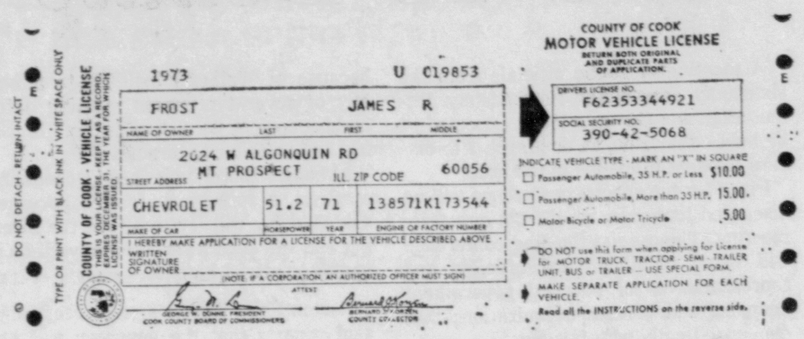

By the first week in March more than 15 homeowner groups had organized to oppose the tax. A law suit was promised and was filed early in April.

THE SUIT WAS brought by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association in the county Circuit Court, and contended the tax is unconstitutional because it is to be levied only against residents of unincorporated areas to the benefit of all county residents.

The suit went to the court of Judge Raymond Sarnow, who acted almost immediately by ordering the monies collected through the tax to be held in escrow, pending the outcome of the suit. Because of the suit, Dunne ordered the sheriff's department to issue only warning tickets between May 15 and June 1. The controversial tax was "off" again.

As the deadline for the tax continued to be delayed, so did the court hearing on the suit. By May 15 less than 20 per cent of the affected residents purchased the vehicle sticker. The deadline was extended to July 1.

Because Judge Sarnow had not issued an injunction against enforcement of the ordinance, sheriff's police began, July 1, to issue citations to drivers not displaying the sticker. The court case was again continued — this time until July 21. When that date rolled around Judge Sarnow heard arguments from both sides, but delayed ruling on the suit.

FINALLY, AUG. 28, the judge announced his decision, declaring the tax unconstitutional. It was a major victory for the residents in their fight against the county but also serves as the key to clearing the confusion over the status of the tax today.

While ruling against the tax on one hand, the judge also said the county should continue to administer and collect the tax pending appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court.

Thus, while the tax has been declared

Maine Township School Board

Pleas By Teachers Rejected

Requests by teachers at Maine Township High School Dist. 207 for more voice in education planning, budgets, and school operations have been denied by the Dist. 207 Board of Education. The announcement was made during a board meeting Monday night by Board Pres. William P. Wuehrmann.

Dewane R. Barnes, president of the Maine Teachers Association, asked board members Dec. 18 to establish a committee consisting of representatives of the school board and the teachers association. He asked that the vice president of the teachers association be allowed to sit in all board meetings.

In a letter to Barnes dated Jan. 9, Wuehrmann said the board committee dealing with teacher relations reviewed the teacher's requests but decided "that the present channels of communication between board and staff would not be enhanced by any change in the present structure."

"Under the circumstances we see no pressing need for someone in a liaison role. With the present committee structure of the board neither do we see a need for the board and the Maine Teachers Association to establish a committee other than those which exist to discuss matters of mutual concern." Wuehrmann said.

HE SAID THERE are five subcommittees of the board of education that are "sufficient to handle all matters related to the operation of the Maine High schools." He said teachers are welcome to direct their questions to the committees through Supt. Richard Short.

Barnes told the Herald yesterday he will respond to Wuehrmann's letter after meeting with the association's representative council tomorrow.

Barnes, social science teacher at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, was elected president of the teachers association Dec. 1. The Maine Teachers Association was formed Oct. 31 when teachers voted to merge the two former teachers associations and affiliate with the Illinois Education Association, IEA.

The old teachers association was criticized by teachers after the Dist. 207 Board of Education eliminated 40 teaching positions last spring and cut the district's faculty by 27 teachers in an effort to hold the line on deficit spending.

The IEA has recently become an activist teachers union and is challenging the Chicago Teachers Union for the right to represent teachers in that city. The IEA has become more politically active and has worked to get bills favoring education passed in the state legislature.

Frost Resigns High School Post

The resignation of Ralph J. Frost, retiring assistant superintendent of Maine Township High School Dist. 207, was accepted by the board of education during its meeting Monday night.

Frost, 59, has served the district for 36 years. As assistant superintendent he coordinates courses of study in the district, evaluates special education programs, selects textbooks, applies for state and federal grants for the district, reviews the applications of new teachers. He assumes the duties of Dist. 207 Supt. Richard Short in Short's absence. Frost's resignation is effective June 30.

In recognition of Frost's years of service, the district's new administration building at 1131 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge, was dedicated in October, 1970, and named the Ralph J. Frost Administration Center.

FROST CAME TO Dist. 207 in 1937 as an intern English teacher while working toward his master's degree at Northwestern University. In 1939 he accepted a full-time assignment with the district teaching sophomore and junior English and as sponsor of the school newspaper. Since then he has held successive positions as teacher, dean of boys, administrative assistant to the superintendent, building principal, and assistant superintendent. Maine West High School in Des Plaines was opened under his direction as principal in 1959.

The Maine Township Special Education Program was established in 1966 under Frosts' guidance. He also has lead the district in establishing accelerated and advanced placement programs for students of above average ability.

Short commented on Frost's retirement Monday. "His quiet but persistent leadership is reflected through every accomplishment of the district and the young people it serves," the superintendent said. "He will always have my personal gratitude for his valuable and most appreciated assistance in sharing with me the administrative responsibilities of the high schools."

William P. Wuehrmann, president of the Dist. 207 board of education, said, "I know I speak for every member of the Board when I say that we accept Mr. Frost's letter of resignation with real regret. It will be hard for us to lose this capable administrator who for so many years has shown such superior judgment and skill in dealing with the young people of our schools and with the many problems of the district. His unselfish devotion to his work has earned him the esteem of all who know him."

SPRING-LIKE WEATHER came to the Northwest suburbs a little early this year, and this mother took advantage of it by taking her baby for a stroll in a local forest preserve. Weather forecasters predicted the warming trend would continue through the week.

$500 Construction Equipment Stolen

Construction equipment valued at more than $500 was reported stolen Monday from a building site at 2474 Dempster St. in Des Plaines.

According to police reports, the burglar or burglars broke into the basement of the site, pried open a box containing a 50-pound hydraulic pump worth $400 and took an electric drill valued at $100 and a pair of insulated coveralls.

The pump belonged to Sentry Electric Co. and the drill and coveralls were property of E. A. Smith Heating Co. Both companies are from Chicago and are doing contracting work at the site.

Council OKs Civic Center Drawings, Bond Contract

The Des Plaines city council authorized final architect's drawings and a non-referendum bond contract to finance a $2.25 million civic center.

The council, after 40 minutes of debate, killed by a 13 to 2 vote motion by Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd) to place a bond referendum on the April 17 city election ballot.

Architects Holmes and Fox have said final plans will be complete in four months, leading to possible groundbreaking and construction by summer.

In other action Monday, the council:

- Increased the salaries of the city's three elected officials.
- Established a maximum $100 fine, plus court costs, for liquor license violations.
- Approved payment of $3,934.50 in appropriated, but not spent, fund to the Maine Township Mental Health Association.
- Authorized City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi to complete an ordinance forming a bicentennial celebration commission.

THE PROPOSED civic center, discussed for more than four years, wll include a six-story, $1.2 million city hall, a $700,000 police station and an underground parking lot. The 36,000-square-foot city hall will be built before the police station.

Bolek contended that a referendum "will be an indication from the people. If the people don't want it, we'll have to look for alternate financing. I don't think we could overrule them."

If a referendum passed, the city would be able to borrow up to $3 million in non-referendum bonds for other projects, Bolek said.

"The people have placed us here to represent them," Ald. Alan Abrams (8th) said. "This is a duty to declare what is in the best interest of the city."

ABRAMS SAID that new construction will end renting of office space by the city, "minimizing long-range costs. Putting all departments under one roof will increase government efficiency. The project will upgrade the center and heart of the city."

"We have talked and delayed a decision on a new city hall for four years," Ald. Daniel Kisslinger (4th) said. "If we put this on the ballot — it won't come to the council until May. We will not be out of the ground by this coming Christmas."

Bolek and Ald. Spencer Chase (3rd) were the only "aye" votes supporting a referendum.

MOTIONS TO authorize final plans and a bond contract were passed unanimously. The bond contract with Benjamin & Lang of Chicago, if the city does not issue the bonds within three years, will be $1,000. The architect fees will total about $130,000.

Authorization Monday night is the closest the council has come to beginning the project. The council still must approve final plans, issue the bonds, approve demolition of two Miner Street offices and rent temporary office space for the mayor, health department and city clerk during construction.

The council also voted salary hikes for the mayor, from $20,000 a year plus expenses and a car to $25,000, and the city clerk, from $10,500 a year to $13,500. The raises drew few objections.

Chase contended the $5,000 hike for the mayor, effective May 1, after the city election, would "increase inflation" and topped recommended 5.5 per cent federal guidelines. Ald. Robert Hinde (4th) said "this raise is for four years and is not far from 5.5 per cent."

AN AMENDMENT to the city code, specifying that the office is "full-time" was approved unanimously. Final approval of the hikes will be after wage negotiations with city employes are completed and the budget is officially adopted.

Three aldermen voted against a proposal to hike the city treasurer's salary from $5,500 to $12,000 a year.

"I can't see the justification in going to a full-time city treasurer," Abrams said. "I'd rather see us add staff — a qualified accountant. This is a step backward."

ABRAMS CONTENDED that the switch from a part to full-time treasurer "is a change in the form of government" and should be a referendum issue. Abrams was a spokesman last month for a proposal that Des Plaines change to a part-time mayor government. The idea was dropped by the council when supporters of Mayor Herbert Behrel demanded a referendum.

Chase, Abrams and Ald. Robert Michaels (8th) voted against the increase. City Treasurer Irving Rateike, who filed petitions for reelection this week, said he will run regardless of salary. His announced opponent Thomas Mahon, of 1011 Alfini Dr., favors a part-time post.

The change in liquor violation fines was prompted by increasing city court costs. Recent penalties for selling liquor to minors have been license suspension for two or three days, Behrel, who is city liquor commissioner, said.

Cost of the prosecutions is more than $300 a case, DiLeonardi estimated. Two attorneys, one for the mayor and the other for the city, and a court reporter are required at hearings.

Bolek recommended that the council set a $300 court cost limit, but Ald. Lois Czubakowski (5th) amended the motion to include all costs. "I don't see why the city should pay for their indiscretion," she said.

Walker May Attend Area Meeting

NIPC To Debate Flooding

A meeting of public officials from the six-county area of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission is expected to be held either Feb. 24 or March 3 to discuss flooding problems in the area.

Plans for the special conference will be discussed tomorrow at NIPC's quarterly meeting. The special flooding conference will bring together local officials and representatives of several government agencies and private organizations that deal specifically with flooding.

Aimed at "organizing political leaders toward separating people and storm water," the conference will deal with overbank storm water flooding, inadequate drainage and shoreline erosion and flooding.

Gov. Dan Walker or a member of his staff is expected to attend the conference.

Contrary to a previously published newspaper story, a spokesman for Walker's office denied the governor had declined an invitation to attend the meeting and a NIPC spokesman said there were no plans to postpone the conference indefinitely.

EARLIER THIS week it had been reported NIPC had called off the session because of Walker's inability to attend any of several proposed meeting dates and because of the "state of flux" in federal and state bureaucracies.

Although there have been scheduling conflicts, a spokesman for the governor said, Walker will try to attend the meeting and will send a representative if he is unable to attend himself.

Norton Kay, Walker's press secretary, said reports that the governor was unavailable to attend the conference any time in January or February were untrue. NIPC had asked for the governor on one specific day and time and the governor had a previous commitment, Kay said. He said Walker had expressed his concern about flooding problems repeatedly.

Kay said Walker has had daily briefings on the flooding situation in Illinois from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the state Department of Waterways and Civil Defense officials.

"There is no tapering off of concern on the governor's part," Kay said, noting that Walker has assigned one of his top legal aides to oversee flooding problems in the state.

THE NIPC public service office Monday also denied reports that the conference had been "postponed indefinitely."

Jim Wahlman, of the NIPC staff, said the meeting would be held in the early spring and said March 3 is a possible date. "We will have it on the basis that it is open to local public officials and anyone else who would like to come," he said about scheduling problems with Walker's office.

Wahlman said NIPC hopes to hold the conference as early as possible so that any proposals for legislation which result from the meeting could be submitted to the Illinois General Assembly in time for action this year.

Larry Aggens, NIPC public service officer, said, at a meeting last month that representatives of municipalities, townships, counties, the state, federal government branches, special districts and the judiciary will be invited.

He said representatives of the Corps of Engineers, the Metropolitan Sanitary District and other related agencies will also be urged to attend.

Aggens said the meeting will work toward an emergency action plan to deal with flooding, a short-term land acquisition and construction plan and a long-term plan to deal with flooding.

He said 11,000 public officials will be invited to the conference.

unconstitutional by the circuit court, it remains on the books and in effect until a final decision is rendered by the high court.

THE NOTICE of appeal to the Supreme Court has been filed. Paul Biebel, the assistant state's attorney handling the case, said he expects the case will be heard by the court in March. Until then, the status is expected to remain the same:

- The law is in effect and the stickers should be purchased.
- The law is not being enforced. The sheriff's department, however, may be reluctant to admit, publicly, they are not enforcing a law that at least temporarily, is valid.
- The money is being held in escrow, in interest-bearing accounts. If the tax is held unconstitutional, the money paid for stickers since 1972 will be refunded. One of Dunne's legal aides has said the interest will be returned with the refund.
- If the tax is declared unconstitutional the county will not, however, refund the money automatically. An administrative analyst for the county's department of management services said persons who have paid the tax, in that case, would have to request a refund and provide proof the tax was paid.
- If the tax is found constitutional and valid, enforcement could resume immediately. Dunne's legal adviser, said, however, he expects the county would extend a period of grace to allow residents to purchase the stickers.

The status of the Cook County "wheel tax" is perfectly clear — it is in limbo. And each individual will have to use his own judgment in deciding whether to obey the letter of the law or take his chances on when and how the Supreme Court will rule.

Walker Delays Transit Comment

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Gov. Dan Walker's office delayed comment yesterday on a report from the Commission on Economic Development urging establishment of a six-county mass transit authority in the Chicago area.

The report advised the governor that though the need for such an authority is great, it should be funded from sources other than the state motor fuel tax.

Norton Kay, press secretary to the governor, said that the governor's staff will study the commission's report, along with other proposals.

Walker has favored establishment of a metropolitan mass transit system in the six counties of Northeastern Illinois.

Kay said the governor has reached no firm decision on how such a system should be financed, but reiterated the administration's position of "no new taxes, and no increase in present taxes." That would eliminate from Walker's final proposal a suggestion to increase the state motor fuel tax by one-half cent for mass transit purposes.

The report compiled by the commission's subcommittee on transportation on instructions of former governor Richard B. Ogilvie, stated, "In view of the new emphasis on federal revenue sharing as well as the possibility of the federal highway trust fund being broadened to include mass transit programs, it would appear short-sighted to divert motor fuel tax revenues from projects and programs that are critically needed in their own right."

The report said a six-county authority would unite the 25 independent mass carriers now operating in the area, reduce congestion on Chicago-area expressways and reduce the need for a third major airport.

Establishment of the authority, the report added, should allow for eventual membership by cities as distant as Rockford, Ill., and Madison, Wis.

Funds Suit Weighed Against Blair

by BOB LAHEY

Latest development in the deep division of Republicans in the Illinois House of Representative is the possibility of a lawsuit against their elected speaker, W. Robert Blair of Park Forest, over some $186,000 in campaign funds allegedly distributed by Blair to his supporters during the recent campaign.

Anti-Blair forces in the House, who charge that he won their support for reelection as speaker through false promises are "exploring" the possibility of bringing him to court for an accounting of the funds.

According to Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, one of the leaders in the fight to block Blair's return to the speakership, the possibility of a suit for breach of contract has also been considered.

Schlickman said the oral agreeement between Blair and supporters of Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Chicago, under which Hyde was to be accorded two of the four leadership positions among House Republicans, consituted a contract for which no written document was required, and which was abrogated by Blair.

SUCH A court action, however, would raise questions of interference by the judiciary in the legislative process. As Hyde put it, "The courts have traditionally respected the separation of powers — although they have been making some inroads lately."

But Hyde said he believed the courts would regard the election of a speaker as purely a matter for the legislature. "Even though he (Blair) was reelected through blatant fraud," Hyde said, "there is a remedy available," though there is little chance it could be realized.

The House could, on a vote of 89 of its 177 members, reconsider its vote on the speakership and then elect a new speaker. Hyde said such action is doubtful because approximately 59 of the 89 Republican members are loyal to Blair and the anti-Blair forces can hope for little help from the 88 Democrats who "are enjoying the donnybrook."

However, Hyde said there appeared to be a definite possibility of litigation over the campaign funds. Hyde said such a suit would seek, first, an accounting of how the funds were spent, and, secondly, a declaration that placing the funds in Blair's control constituted establishment of a trust requiring an approved plan for their disposition. Hyde said such a suit would also seek a court order for disposition of any surplus in what he termed amounted to a "private slush fund" for Blair.

A NUMBER of Republicans have charged that the campaign contributions placed at Blair's disposal were intended for all GOP candidates, but were used by him only to boost the candidacies of those who promised to support his reelection as speaker.

Where or not a suit over the campaign funds could succeed, Hyde said, "I don't think he can be bounced as speaker."

"I am afraid he will continue to yield an uncertain gavel over a dwindling two-thirds of Republicans for a quick two years," he added.

Asked if that meant that Hyde agreed with speculation that Blair's broach of his agreement signaled the end of his political career, Hyde replied, "That is something that I shall devoutly and earnestly hope, pray and work for."

Education Today

by Wandalyn Rice

A high school journalism student once asked me how newspaper reporters manage to prepare for the controversies and political battles they are often called upon to cover.

In asking the question, the student made the assumption that most of the outbreaks of dissent that newspapers describe are unexpected — that they are always startling emergency type situations that can't be predicted in advance.

The truth, as I tried to explain to the student, is that a reporter almost never runs into a totally unexpected controversy. Usually, it takes only one quick look at the agenda of a board meeting, legislative session or committee hearing to figure out that a meeting will be more than routine.

For example, when I get a school board agenda and see that the board will discuss school attendance boundaries, I know there will be arguments.

I know that parents whose children might be affected by boundary changes will show up and ask the board to let their children finish at the school they have started in. I know that I will hear the plaint, very real in these rapidly growing suburbs, that a family can live in one house for 15 years and have their children attend six or eight schools.

THE ONE THING that is always unpredictable, however, is how a school board will react to these arguments. In the last few weeks, for example, the High School Dist. 214 and Dist. 211 boards have faced the problem of setting boundaries for a new high school and have reacted in entirely different ways.

THE DIST. 214 board, faced with the problem of setting boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School, discussed the alternatives at about eight public meetings beginning in August and extending through the time the decision was made. Then, when a group of Buffalo Grove residents still expressed displeasure, the board agreed to form a committee to study their gripe still further.

The meetings on the boundaries were often long and sometimes heated. At one meeting one group of residents would express a view and then at the next meeting another group would arrive to plead its case.

The board members were always patient, even when residents repeated each others points or threatened them with reprisal at the polls. They kept pointing out how the enrollment figures compelled them to do certain things, even when it was clear some of the audience wasn't listening.

IN DIST. 211 the situation was quite different. The question of boundaries for Hoffman Estates High School was studied at length by the district's administration and residents came to one board meeting before tre board had alternatives before it to express their views.

A month later, the board looked at alternatives one night at a committee meeting and the same week, with concerned residents present, the board adopted its administrations recommendation on the boundaries.

Residents tried to argue and persuade the board and, as usually happens in that kind of meeting, several persons started talking at once. Board Pres. Robert Creek sharply told them, "We are going to have an orderly discussion or we aren't going to have a discussion at all."

Later in the meeting, Creek told the residents, "There is no way this school board or any other can make boundary changes and make everybody happy."

After the board made its decision, the crowd left, convinced, I'm sure, that there was no way to change the decision.

AS YOU can see, the contrast between the two boards is marked. On one hand, the Dist. 214 board publicly agonized and tried very hard, if not to please everyone, at least to persuade them it was doing the best thing. On the other hand, the Dist. 211 board, while it listened to residents, basically took the position it would not spend long hours trying to persuade — it would simply make the decision and let everyone live with it.

Which system is better? The Dist. 214 board, when it finally cuts off debate on its decision, probably will end up with some unhappy people, just as Dist. 211 did. I suppose you can argue that, since people are going to be unhappy anyway, you might as well be efficient and not drag out a question.

At the same time, I'll admit I'm uncomfortable with any public body that is too self-confident and too quick when it makes decisions. And there were moments during Dist. 211's deliberations when I had the feeling they were listening to the residents in the same way a parent listens to a teen-ager's arguments about staying out late at night. The parent listens, but he's already made up his mind.

So, even though I sometimes get tired of covering long, numerous meetings about boundary issues, I have to admit I'd rather see a board have that kind of concern for residents than see one that takes its actions in quick and almost predetermined fashion.

I don't know how the residents of the districts involved feel about it, though. Maybe we'll find out in April — there's an election then.

Harper To Sponsor Seminar On College Administration

About 100 administrators of community colleges across the country are scheduled to attend a Management by Objectives institute Thursday and Friday sponsored by Harper College.

The institute will be held at Arlington Park Towers.

The management-by-objectives system is increasingly being adapted from business, where it has been used for a number of years, to educational settings. It is a system of planning, goal-setting, evaluation and accountability — of knowing where the organization is going and how to get there.

In 1968 Harper College received a federal grant to establish a model in-service training program for community college administrators. A primary feature of the program was to develop and implement an MBO system of educational management.

"After four years of MBO, the Harper College management team is ready to share its experiences with other college managers," said Robert E. Lahti, Harper president.

Leadership for the two-day working sessions will be given by George S. Odiorne, dean of business administration at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City and former director of the Bureau of Industrial Relations at the University of Michigan. He has pioneered the MBO concept and assisted in its use in major corporations in the U.S. and Canada.

Lahti will speak on the educational application of MBO.

Hayes To Speak At SDX Meeting

Charles E. Hayes, Herald editor and publisher, will address members of the Northern Illinois professional chapter of Sigma Delta Chi journalistic society at a dinner meeting tonight in DeKalb.

His address, "The Action's in the Suburbs," will examine media development and changing newspaper readership patterns in suburban Chicago. The 7 p.m. meeting will be held at The Coach Light Inn, Sycamore Road, DeKalb.

Hayes is a director and past president of the Headline Club, Chicago professional chapter of SDX.

AN IMPORTANT
MIND CONTROL® & ESP
SEMINAR/LECTURE
FOR EVERYONE INTERESTED IN DEVELOPING MENTAL POWERS

Recently, many national publications such as Life, Madamoiselle, Harper's Bazaar and Sales Management, featured articles on Silva Mind Control. These articles discussed a fantastic breakthrough, a new science dealing with conscious control of brain waves.

This new science is called Alphagenics and concerns itself with the Alpha rhythms of brain. Noted researchers discussed how any person can learn to control brain waves. Exploration of this almost unknown continent — the human brain — has been pioneered by a soft-spoken, researcher, Jose Silva, of the Institute of Psychorientology in Laredo, Texas. This sincere, dedicated scientist has been training people to enhance Alpha Brain Wave production for many years.

ALPHA BRAIN WAVE FUNCTION — Twenty six years ago Silva and his associates began their research in Mind Control to see if it was possible to increase a person's IQ factor. Amazingly, Silva discovered that not only could IQ be increased but a person trained in this technique could even control certain areas of the Autonomic System — heart beat, respiration, blood pressure, etc.. The implications of this breakthrough with regard to health and disease were staggering. With Mind Control, students have reported that they have been able to control pain, accelerate healing, eliminate insomnia, migraine headaches, as well as untold psychosomatic problems. In-depth studies also revealed that anyone with a normal brain and sufficient training could develop so-called ESP and clairvoyance.

100,000 GRADUATES — COAST TO COAST — In 1966, the Institute decided to release their findings to the general public. Techniques had been refined to where only a few hours of class time were all that was required to become a truly effective person.

With the mastery and the enhancement of Alpha Brain Wave function, students have reported they could relax anytime they desire, banish anxiety and tension, eliminate pain, enhance learning capacity and memory, eliminate bad habits, create good habits and control weight and smoking. By learning to function at the Alpha level you will easily develop psychic power and learn practical applications of ESP. Become a better student, parent, employee or employer and a more effective problem solver.

The Doctor Says

Meat Dangerous? That's Baloney

by LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have read recently that if one eats a lot of meat it will tend to make one have animal-like characteristics. Is this possibly true?

Now I also read that vegetarians are trying to make meat packages contain a label that says it is dangerous to our health. What do you think of this? I eat meat at least once a day and often twice. When I don't have it, I crave it.

Dear Reader — I've heard this comment several times about animal meat giving a person animal characteristics and it's a lot of "baloney."

Proteins are made up of building blocks called amino acids, and the human body uses only twenty amino acids for building and replacing its structures. It uses no other amino acids.

These amino acids are necessary whether they are manufactured by the body or ingested from food.

It doesn't make any difference what food they come from. Amino acids are plain, straight-forward chemicals, and their chemical structure can and has been identified atom by atom, and even the exact location and structure that the atoms form together to build the amino acids.

THESE SPECIFIC chemicals are the same, regardless of whether they come from vegetables, animals, or any other source.

A lot of suggestions, such as the one you mentioned, can only be circulated by individuals who have no knowledge whatever of basic chemistry.

Now this doesn't mean that you have to get your amino acid protein from animal sources either. Many vegetarians get along extremely well obtaining all the necessary protein elements from non-meat sources.

Beans are an excellent source of protein. If you want to use animal products but still avoid meat, you can use egg whites and the protein in milk products.

CEREALS contain important proteins for the body. But, of course, you must have a properly balanced diet, being certain not only to get a sufficient amount of protein, but also foods of sufficient variety to provide all the essential amino acids that the body needs for good health. This also means that the diet shouldn't be limited solely to meat sources from cereal and vegetable foods.

I don't know anything about the vegetarian's idea that meat should be labeled as dangerous, but I would say that all foods can be dangerous if one eats too much of them, causing obesit and many of the modern ills.

I do agree that all foods should be properly labeled concerning their content in a manner in which people can readily use this information when they are buying food.

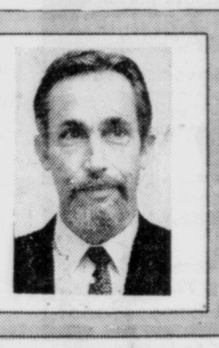

THIS SPECIFICALLY includes the total calories and the number of calories from the different food constituents, including carbohydrates, proteins, and fats, with a breakdown in the number of calories of each of the individual types of fat.

To protect those individuals with health problems, the presence of substances that can make some people sick should be listed.

Gluten for example can cause a serious illness in gluten sensitive people and is found in such common items as commercial ice cream using flour for thickening.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I'm not ordinarily given to epochal statements but in my judgment we have just witnessed the peaking out of the industrial age.

The fuel shortages in the Midwest mark the passing of the crest. Never again, I believe, will we have enough fuel to run everything at once.

If I switch on my electric shoe horn, you will have to switch off your electric eyebrow pencil. Otherwise, they will have to close the schools in Cleveland.

I reached this conclusion after learning that the government may try to ease the energy crisis by converting oil-burning generating plants to coal.

WHAT ELSE lies ahead? Seeking an answer to that question, I paid a visit to The Future Is Yesterday Corp., a private research center that is experimenting with new energy sources.

"Actually, the power situation isn't all that critical," said Harry McErst, a technician who was showing me around the plant.

"Take a look at this," he said, leading me into a large courtyard.

I said, "That's very interesting. What is it?"

"It's a horse," McErst explained. "We here at the Future is Yesterday Corp. believe the solution to our energy problem is horsepower. Watch this."

He went over and gave the horse a slap on the fetlock. Or maybe it was the withers. I'm a little weak on equine anatomy.

IT WAS THEN that I noticed the horse was attached to a long wooden pole that protruded from a wheel-like device.

Stimulated by the slap, the horse began to walk in a circle around the courtyard. As it did so, the pole caused the wheel to turn, activating a portable dishwasher.

"By George, that's amazing!" I exclaimed. "You're running that dishwasher without any cost of electric hookup. This could revolutionize household appliances."

"You ain't seen nothing yet," McErst assured me.

We then ascended to the roof of the plant upon which had been erected a tall derrick topped by four large fan-like blades that were spinning briskly.

I LOOKED up at the thing in astonishment and said, "What in the world is causing those blades to turn?"

"You may not believe this," McErst chuckled, amused by my perplexity, "but it's the wind. We are, in effect, harnessing nature and making it work for us as an energy source."

"What do you call it?" I asked, lost in admiration.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

If you haven't got around to using the Stayman convention as yet, we don't recommend that you try the Jacoby transfer. They fit together like bread and butter provided you use what we call a very nonforcing Stayman.

In this variation the no-trump bidder must allow for the possibility that responder's two clubs has been made with a very bad hand and must not go past two spades on his own hook.

Now take a look at the North hand. Your partner opens one no-trump. You don't want him to play there and you are right. He won't make one no-trump.

Playing ordinary bridge you can respond two hearts and hope for the best. It won't happen. You just can't make two hearts.

Playing the transfer you can bid two diamonds and let your partner struggle with the two hearts. He won't make it any more than you would but better action is possible. You respond two clubs!

You plan to bid two hearts if your partner rebids two diamonds but something nice happens. Your partner has spades and bids two of that suit.

You pass and let him play there. West opens the queen of diamonds and your partner has no trouble making the two-spade contract.

Immediate Land Purchase Recommended

New Airport Needed; Study

by DOUG RAY

A detailed stuoy of airport needs in northern Illinois, ordered by former Governor Richard Ogilvie's administration, recommends land be purchased immediately for a third major airport to serve metropolitan Chicago.

The report by Ralph M. Parsons Co. of Los Angeles, which cost the state $300,000, has not been released. "We should be publishing the document shortly," said an official of the California firm.

A single copy of the study was presented to Ogilvie several months ago but never released to the public.

A $300,000 FEASIBILITY study of airport needs for northern Illinois recommends land be purchased for a third major airport to serve the Chicago area. The report, ordered by ex-Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's administration in 1970, says the land must be acquired as soon as possible because of scarcity of property in the metropolitan area. The study was undertaken with the assumption that O'Hare and Midway airports will not be expanded beyond their current boundaries.

The Herald has learned the study was undertaken with the assumption that O'Hare and Midway Airport will not expand beyond present boundaries. However, the study does not rule out the possibility of expanded runways within present boundaries at O'Hare.

A Parsons' spokesman who worked on the project said it does not appear that a third airport is necessary at this time but added the land must be purchased soon in anticipation of a third airport. "If we don't there won't be any place to put it," he said. "There is a terrible scarcity of land because of rapid urbanization."

THE REPORT suggests land be purchased and used for another purpose until a third airport is proven necessary.

He said the need for a third major airport will depend on several factors including possible changes in aircraft development and travel time to airports, apparently hinging upon rapid transit systems.

The Parsons Report, entitled Northern Illinois Airport Requirement and Feasibility Study, was authorized in 1970 and completion date of March 30, 1971 was set for a final draft. The state Bureau of the Budget paid the entire $300,000.

The report was ordered after Chicago's own consultants procuded a feasibility study showing that a Lake Michigan airport would be technically sound.

NEARBY states have completed studies of their own in an attempt to determine the need of a third Chicago-area airport.

James and Berger Associates of Indianapolis has established that the regional airport should be built in northwest Indiana near Crown Point, just south of the Gary-Hammond area.

Wisconsin now is in the midst of an airport study to determine if the third airport to Chicago should be built in that state.

And according to former state aeronautic officials, at least a half dozen Illinois jetport sites have been discussed, prior to the Parsons study.

THE OFFICIAL said studies have shown that an area near Peotone, Ill., is a good site for the third airport. The location is less than 25 miles from Chicago along Interstate 57, and much of the land is undeveloped.

The Parsons report does not pinpoint a particular area as the best site for a new airport but does present several sites for consideration, according to a Parsons official.

"This is the first time we have used these types of tools and applied them to the (airport) problem," he said. The report, which has a body of some 400 pages, "has tremendous detail and a lot of raw data."

Parsons is working an another airport study for the state at a cost of $540,000. This airport needs study involves the entire state with the exception of the Chicago area.

Nixon's 'New Majority' Will Have A Ball At Inaugural

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When President Nixon is formally installed for a second term Saturday, he will be participating in a ceremony that is as old as the republic.

George Washington's inaugural was bare bones. He intoned a simple oath pledging to protect the Constitution and the nation, and followed it with a speech that lasted barely two minutes.

Nixon's second inaugural will stretch over four days. As many as 250,000 persons may view the inaugural parade, and millions more will watch it on television.

It will cost $4 million to stage the extravaganza, making it the costliest inaugural in history. But officials say there was a $1 million surplus from Nixon's first inaugural, and they expect this one to pay its own way.

There will be something for everyone. Music lovers can attend concerts; parade lovers can view a spectacular down Pennsylvania Avenue; and people who love to be seen in the company of famous people can go to one of the three inaugural balls — if they get an invitation.

NIXON HAS CHOSEN the theme "Spirit of '76" in hopes of inspiring a resurgence in America's traditional values as it nears its 200th anniversary. To this end, he has ordered a new event for this inaugural — a "Salute to America's Heritage."

It will honor the contributions of the nation's ethnic and minority groups to the growth of America. Nixon aides also say it will involve more people in the inauguration — people representing the "New Majority" that Nixon said helped him to his overwhelming reelection triumph.

The salute consists of ethnic music, dancing, art and food, and will be held from 2 - 6 p.m. Friday, at the Corcoran Gallery of Art. Co-hosts are Sammy Davis Jr., Lionel Hampton and Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Otherwise, the events are pretty much the same this year as at recent inaugurals.

THEY WILL begin tomorrow night with a reception for Vice President and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew at the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology. For $10 per person, you can honor the Agnews, and when you purchase the ticket, you will be told to which hour during the three-hour reception you are assigned.

For this event, as for all others, except the inaugural parade, tickets must be purchased, but are available only by special invitation.

At 9 p.m. that night, there will be a "Salute to the States," honoring the 50 governors. It will be held at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, and tickets range from $25 to $100.

At the Salute to the States, Bob Hope and country and western singers Lynn Anderson and Ray Stevens will headline the show. Hope, Sammy Davis Jr., and Frank Sinatra, all cronies of the President, chair the Inaugural Entertainment Committee.

On Friday, from 2 - 6 p.m., is the "Salute to America's Heritage" at $10 a throw, $5 for children under 12.

THAT NIGHT there will be three inaugural concerts at the Kennedy Center. The first, at 7:30 p.m., will be an American music concert, with Sinatra as emcee and starring Sammy Davis Jr., Les Brown and his band, and Laurie Lee Schaefer, Miss America, 1972. Tickets go for $20 per person, or $250 or $500, the latter two entitling the purchaser to cocktails and a candlelight dinner following the concert.

There also will be a youth concert at 8:30 p.m., starring soil singer James Brown and other rock music stars. Tickets are $10 each, with some box seats going for $50.

The third will be the symphonic concert starring pianist Van Cliburn, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Los Angeles Master Chorale and the Valley Forge, Pa., Military Academy Band. Tickets range from $30 to $500, with the $250 and $500 tickets entitling the purchaser to a candlelight dinner and cocktails preceding the concert. That concert will be televised on the public broadcasting network.

ON SATURDAY, Nixon will take the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Warren Burger at temporary stands on the East Portico of the Capitol. The cermony is set for noon, with Nixon's inaugural speech following.

Nixon . . . his inaugural will stretch over four days.

Washington Inaugural Took 2 Weeks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — George Washington was supposed to be inaugurated as first President of the new United States in March, 1789 — but that was before newspapers and the metroliner.

And because of that, his inauguration really lasted two weeks.

What with the lag in communications, George wasn't officially notified of his election until April 13 — a month after the scheduled oath-taking.

Then it took him two days to prepare for the trip from his home in Mount Vernon, Va., to the temporary capital of the new nation in New York City.

ONCE HE started out, it took two weeks to travel through Alexandria, Va., Baltimore, Wilmington, Philadelphia and Trenton.

To cap it off, he made his grand entrance into New York on an elaborately decorated ceremonial barge from New Jersey.

The process was drawn out still further when a joint congressional committee kept him waiting while its members quarreled about oath-taking procedures.

But the swearing-in finally was accomplished. The oath was administered by Robert Livingston, chancellor of New York at the time. The tradition of having the chief justice of the Supreme Court perform the ceremony began with John Adams in 1797.

Washington's inaugural was April 30, 1789, cutting his term short by almost two months.

But Can He Do It With A Hostile Congress?

Nixon's Remaining Task: Finish What He Promised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon heads into his second term cast in the role of a lame duck who must battle a hostile Democratic Congress over a domestic program that is not likely to generate much national interest.

Nixon became constitutionally ineligible for another term with his landslide victory in November over Sen. George S. McGovern.

The President won what he called "a new American majority," a victory he said transcended traditional party politics. But if he won a mandate, it was one that is not easily read. He said he favored "not radical change but change that will work." The specifics of that change will be found in the unfinished business from his first term and the pronouncements still to come from his second.

He still must give priority to settlement of the Vietnam War. In addition, his "new American revolution" proclaimed for domestic policy almost two years ago has not been carried out.

HIS "REVOLUTION" called for a reversal of the flow of power to Washington and a return of it to state and local governments and to the people. This new federalism theme ran through his reelection campaign on domestic issues.

More than three years elapsed from the time he endorsed sharing federal income tax revenues with state and local governments until Congress approved a much amended version of its own.

The welfare reform program he endorsed at the same time rode a bumpy road through the House and died in the Senate.

For the new American revolution outlined in his 1971 state of the union message, he restated those two programs and added a major overhaul of cabinet departments along with a proposal for "special revenue sharing" of $11 billion.

This special revenue sharing plan was to give state and local governments more flexibility in spending the present "categorical aid" money, which is translated by state and local government officials to mean excessive federal regulation and red tape.

PRESSURE FROM the states and local units of government eventually prompted Congress to act on "general revenue sharing," allotting them over $30 billion in a five-year period. The cabinet changes and special revenue sharing were all but ignored by a Congress which was under no similar pressure.

Voters seldom get enthused about issues which involve moving around on charts squares and lines representing government agencies and functions. Many developed an interest in general revenue sharing, but public interest lagged in the "special" types defined by Nixon.

The bill enacted by Congress in 1972 did, in fact, contain a form of special revenue sharing in the two-thirds of the money earmarked for local governments. Those units were given freedom to spend it as they wished for specified functions such as public safety, pollution control, public health and recreation. But excluded was education, which comes under a categorical grant program.

VOTERS ARE constantly interested in taxes. Nixon proposed a year ago that two commissions study methods of financing public schools with the aim of cutting local property taxes by 50 per cent.

The Advisory Committee on Intergovernmental Relations has voted to tell the administration that state and local governments can handle their own property tax problems. It also agreed that a value added tax — a form of national sales tax — was not needed for school financing.

The administration has all but abandoned the value-added tax idea.

Nixon has said he is opposed to federal tax increases and that property tax relief would have to come a step at a time, beginning with help for the elderly whose property tax burden takes up a substantial part of their income.

Before voting on its report, the advisory commission ordered a public opinion survey that indicated only 7 per cent of the public thought property taxes were the fairest, compared with 36 for the federal income tax, 33 for state sales taxes and 11 for state income taxes.

When asked which level of government gave them the most for their tax money, 39 per cent picked the federal government, 26 local government and 18 per cent the states with the balance in the "don't know" class. This breakdown could raise questions about whether most citizens indeed regard the federal government as an ogre — worse than the units closer to the people.

NIXON DIDD appear to catch the public mood in his opposition to busing public school pupils for racial balance, but legislation for that purpose died in a Senate filibuster. And the voters and all known officeholders in both parties are with him against crime and drug addiction even when they disagree about what should be done.

Congressional opponents of the revenue sharing bill already enacted are watching for any sign of abuse or scandal in the use of that money. And if history is any guide, Democratic committees and their staff agents will be alert for any whiff of scandal in any part of the administration. The party must pull itself together to reoccupy the White House after the 1976 election.

Domestic policy is not the only arena. Until the war is settled and probably thereafter, Nixon will be in continuous conflict with the doves in the Senate over their efforts to cut the defense budget to finance their favored domestic projects.

Disputes over health insurance and tax reforms should promote debates lasting several years. Arguments about federal spending, deficits, economic controls and their relation to inflation may never end.

Student Coordinator

Oakton's Barb Bell
A Quiet Dynamo

by ELEANOR RIVES

That soft-spoken gal with the flashing smile and long honey-colored hair working in the library at Oakton Community College seems like the quiet, retiring type, right?

Wrong.

That's Barb Bell, Oakton's dynamic student coordinator, elected representative of 3,000 full-time, part-time, daytime and nighttime students. She sits in on the 7-student Board of Student Affairs, appoints the 3-student Judicial Board, represents the student body at Oakton's Board of Trustee meetings, communicates personally with classes, works directly with student clubs and has a finger in just about every student activity that takes place.

"SHE'S GREAT," said Linda Rosenbaum, para-professional adviser to the Board of Student Affairs. "A real go-getter. Willing to work hard. And she gets along so well with all types of people."

Barb is the 20-year-old daughter of Skokie residents Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bell. A graduate of St. Scholastica High School, she entered Oakton in September, 1970 when the college first opened its doors.

"It was kind of exciting to get into something so new," she said.

For 2½ semesters, Barb was a full-time student and a part-time student aide in the library. Now a part-time student, she works 15 hours in the library each week and puts in anywhere from 15 to 30 hours a week as student coordinator. She plans to go on to Northeastern University and pursue a career in social work.

APPROVING budgets is no small part of Barb's duties. Student activities at Oakton are financed by individual $10 student activity fees plus a portion of vending and duplicating machine profits. This year there was approximately $50,000 to work with, including a balance from last year. That's not small potatoes.

This money finances the activities of 16 different student clubs and a myriad other student activities such as concerts, film series, "koffeehouses" and student publications. It pays for speakers; it finances field trips.

Barb defeated two male running mates and succeeded a male predecessor, the school's first student coordinator, when the Oakton student body elected her to her office last October. She has been in a whirl ever since.

"I HAVE no real power, per se," she stated. "All decisions are made by the seven members of the Board of Student Affairs. But I do have power to influence."

When a group of Oakton students with a common interest wishes to start a club, they go to Barb Bell first. She helps them organize and presents their plans and philosophy to the Board of Student Affairs for approval.

Sixteen clubs are now active at Oakton, each started by the students themselves and each included in the student activities budget. They are: bowling, bridge, cheerleaders, chess, Daily Planet, draft counseling and anti-war group, film society, flying, intramurals, photography, poetry, psychology action forum, rapping on religions, ski, theater guild and women's liberation.

THIS SCHOOL year Barb and the board launched a good film series on alternate Wednesday nights at the school; were involved in a blood donor drive, providing refreshments for donors; planned and carried out a "koffeehouse"; and sponsored a folk concert. Time is also devoted to studying and revising the board's present constitution.

"The biggest accomplishment of this year's student government is in the area of budget improvement," asserted Linda Rosenbaum. "They have done a fabulous job. Barb probed the budget needs of every club and presented them at board meetings. She becomes really informed, keeps records and continues with follow-up."

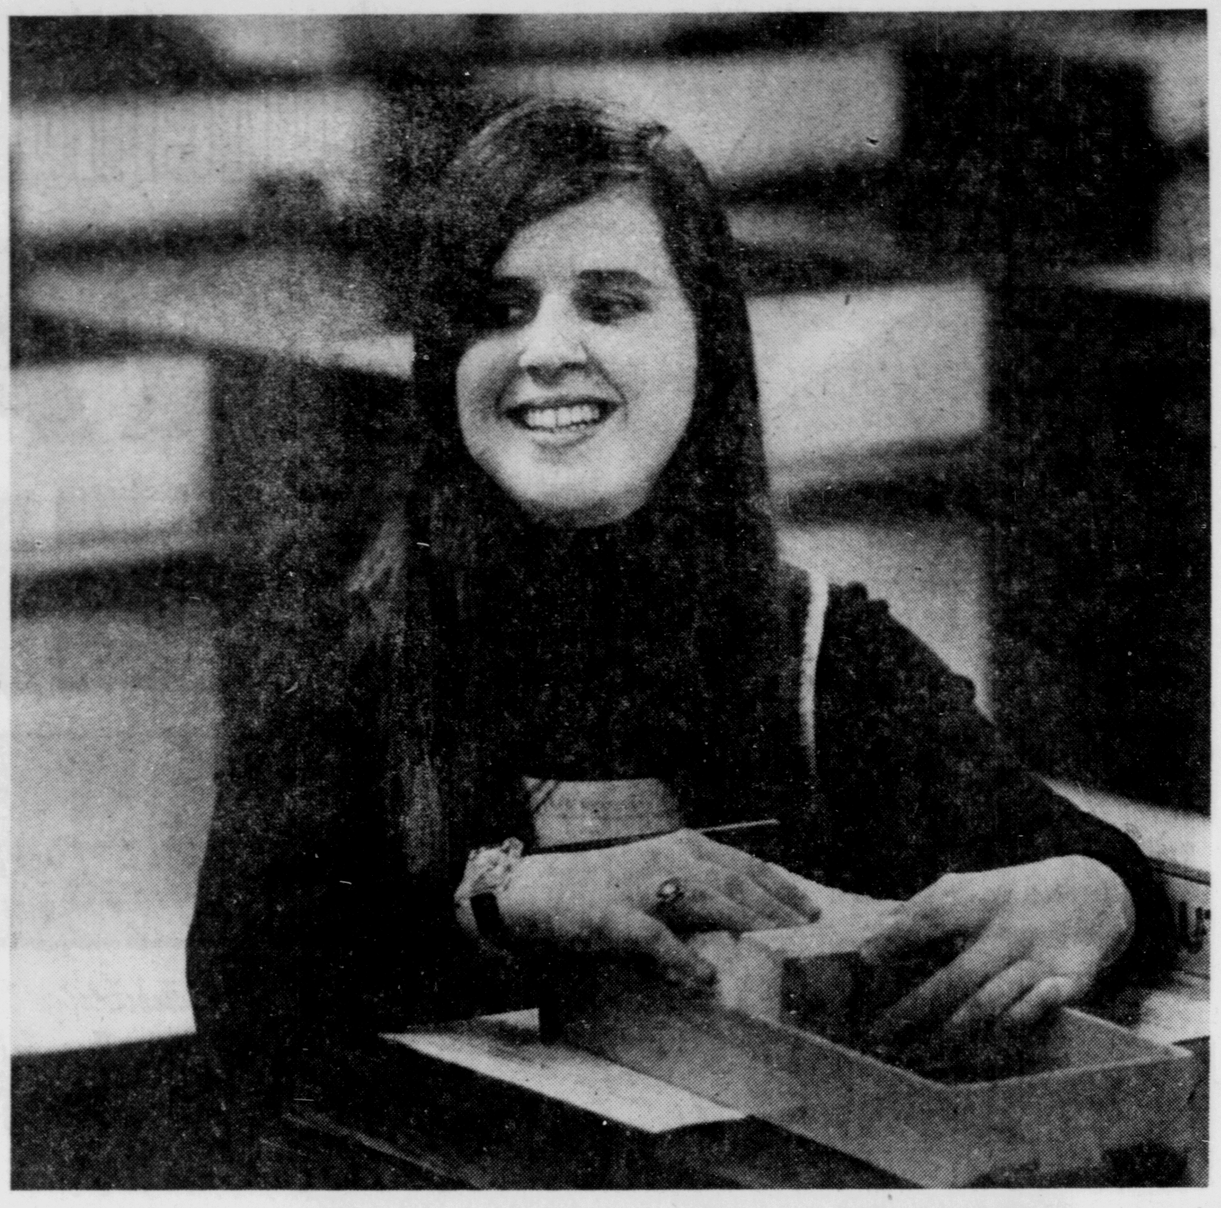

As a representative of Oakton's students, Barb has already attended four meetings of the Board of Trustees. She represents the students at all public events, even conventions. She is present at each President's Forum, an open meeting where students may talk directly to Oakton's president, Dr. William Koehnline. The next forum is scheduled for Jan. 23.

BARB'S DRIVING ambition as student coordinator is to establish better communication, to open the lines between student and student, and student and administration.

It troubles her that there is no intercom announcement facility at Oakton. Conveying complete information on student activities is difficult. Not satisfied with merely sending memos to teachers to make class announcements, Barb has taken it upon herself to visit class after class and speak to the students personally.

"I've made a point of visiting night school classes," she said. "So often the night student feels he is left out of things, or that he is considered unimportant. I want to show him that we're interested and we care.

"Visiting classes is the most important thing I'm doing right now."

WHEN SHE'S NOT attending classes or devoting time to her duties as student coordinator at Oakton Community College, Barb Bell works in the school library. As representative of the student body, it's important to her that Oakton students have an accepted voice in the policies and procedures affecting their education and activities. Her goal is to open all lines of communication.

24 Ways To Beat Inflation

by KAY MARSH

Even the rich, it's said, have their little economies. Remember the newspaper story about the multi-millionaire who installed a pay phone in his mansion because the long distance charges were running so high?

And those of us who aren't multi-millionaires, or even mini-millionaires, have our own pet penny pinchers. One of the most unusual I've run into lately involves an acquaintance who does a lot of sewing. She always takes her pattern with her and lays it out on the material right at the fabric shop. "They don't always appreciate it," she says, "but material gets expensive." And at least that's one way she can be sure that she won't buy more material than she needs.

NOW, AT THE SEASON that the U.S. budget goes to Congress, is a fine time to think creatively about little economies that might help you stretch your budget. None of the 24 idea starters mentioned here will instantly solve all your money problems, but these may help you wind up the month with an extra dollar or so left in your billfold.

1. Analyze your charge accounts. Cancel any that encourage you to buy more than you really want or need.
2. If you feel the need for exercise, jog or walk. Don't spend money on exercise equipment and paraphernalia.
3. Wash your own car.
4. Write a brief note instead of sending a greeting card. No matter how clever or expensive, the greeting card is far less personal.
5. Plan your vacation now. Make any necessary reservations while the less-expensive accommodations are still available.
6. Don't over-buy on clothing. It's a poor long-term investment.
7. Give a family heirloom or keepsake instead of a new wedding present, especially to a dear friend or member of your family.
8. DON'T BE AN "impulse buyer." Make yourself keep a running want list. Write now — buy later. Much later.
9. Investigate thrift shop buying and clothing exchanges for your youngsters. The latter are often available for such items as ice skates or Scout uniforms.
10. Think twice before you replace an appliance or add a new one. Remember, it's not the original cost; it's all those service calls.
11. Entertain more at home. Get together with your friends and form a monthly dinner club, featuring a potluck affair at each other's houses.
12. Since the drinks are usually the most expensive part of a party at home, develop a taste for wine. For a touch of inexpensive elegance, have a wine-tasting party, or set up a sherry bar.
13. Start working on your income tax return now, so you'll have plenty of time to find all those perfectly legal deductions.
14. Never expect something for nothing. As a wise man once observed, "There is no such thing as a free lunch."
15. KEEP ENOUGH MONEY in your checking account to avoid paying service charges.
16. Invest any surplus money in a savings account, U.S. savings bonds or something that will help your money earn more money.
17. Take advantage of seasonal sales. January, for instance, is traditionally the month to replenish bedding and household linens and at substantial savings.
18. Use the long winter evenings to embroider, knit, crochet or whatever you prefer in the needlework line. Get a head start on next year's Christmas gifts.
19. Learn to cut your children's hair and, if possible, to do your own.
20. Stay out of the stores as much as possible. And do get by with no more than a once a week trip to the grocery store.
21. Use your library card — for magazines, newspapers, etc., as well as for books.
22. Lose five or six pounds, and see how much better your clothes look.
23. Take advantage of free entertainment opportunities in your community.
25. Learn to say no to your children. And mean it!

New Home Boutique

Browsers Are Welcome At Ann's Lovespace

Had time permitted, Ann Fonvielle would have probably given a detailed description of every piece in the new home furnishings shop located in the Plum Grove Shopping Center, Rolling Meadows.

Ann's enthusiasm for her first business venture is understandable since she's always been interested in home fashions and decorating. Her recently opened shop, called Lovespace, can be found at 2160 Plum Grove Road.

Ann's husband, Bill, was instrumental in helping to get the store started. However, Ann has assumed responsibility for managing the shop.

The new home furnishings center offers an unusual selection of contemporary styles for homes and apartments. Wall coverings in the form of super graphics, brilliantly patterned contact papers and stick-on foils are offered for modern dwellings. Plants, lamps, stack tables and a variety of accessories are also available.

ANN DOES HER own buying for the shop and has tastefully combined Scandinavian-influenced designs with domestically produced ones. One can find knock-down pieces, decorator rugs and sling chairs on chrome bases.

One of the most interesting pieces is what Ann calls the "fuzzy sleeper." The sleeper resembles an ordinary loveseat in a plush imitation fur. However, the cushions can be re-positioned to form a bed or a chaise lounge. The versatile sleeper will seat 12 people at one time, according to Ann.

If one is not in the market for a "fuzzy sleeper, which retails for about $285, there are various other modern designs to choose from.

"We designed Lovespace with the idea that people could stop in and browse," said Ann. "I think many of the larger stores are missing the personal touch that we can provide here," she added.

SPACE COMBINES WITH LOVE at Ann Fonvielle's Lovespace boutique, Rolling Meadows. The addition of thick carpeting adds to the customer appeal of the contemporary home furnishings center. Designed to add a personal touch to furniture shopping, the shop has a comfortable, relaxed atmosphere suitable for browsing. Ann stocks most of the items shown and will offer design assistance.

It's Fashion

Pastel colorings are advanced in the spring collection of Leo Narducci. He likes the light solids with his neo-Greek classics in doubleknit jersey. In that segment of his collection, culottes, long and short dresses are showered with all-over pleating and bodice criss-crossing.

Colors in designer Adele Simpson's spring collection range from navys combined with yellow and white, champagne by day, as well as vital colors such as pink, green, and blue to lots of white with black for evening.

An important group in the Calvin Klein collection for spring is made of imported rain-treated poplin. The styles include raincoats, shirtjackets, battle-jackets with elasticized waists, and a stylized baseball jacket. In natural colors, the creations are unlined and double-stitched.

Dear Dorothy: I've eaten delicious slaw in restaurants, but my efforts to duplicate the taste have been failures. I'm a fairly new homemaker, just learning to cook, and this may explain my falling short. Do you have a good recipe I might follow? — Sharon S.N.

Coleslaw is a favorite here, too. Even his nibs grumps approvingly, although he makes it clear he'd be more taken if it had less caraway. I happen to like caraway and maybe overdo it. Happily, you have a range with slaw and you can cut my caraway measures in half if it suits your palate better that way.

Anyway, the quantities here are for a large cabbage, which when grated almost fills a three-quart bowl. Then I add two teaspoons of caraway and a sprinkling of coarse salt, stir it in and allow it to set.

In another bowl are mixed three tablespoons of mayonnaise, four tablespoons of sour cream, three tablespoons of sugar and four tablespoons of white vinegar — which gives an ideal (for me) sweet-tart taste. I add another teaspoon of caraway to this dressing and also allow this to set for a few minutes. Then it is mixed with the cabbage, usually a few hours before dinner. I've always thought it gets tastier with the extra hours.

Dear Dorothy: This is for the reader who wanted to know how to wash a surgical garment: Use a shampoo, preferably a concentrate. It's most effective when used with a brush. Shampoos are designed to remove body oil and, therefore, also do a fine job on such difficult areas as men's shirt collars. —Louise Barr

Dear Dorothy: I had a pleated wool skirt that I was tired of and thought I'd try making a shirt for my young son. After ripping out the pleats, dunking the material in warm water, drying, then steam-pressing it, it looked first-rate. —May B.

Kids Understand Mom, Dad Roles

ROCKVILLE, Md. (UPI) — Children may not need to be reared by both parents to learn the different roles men and women customarily play in society. Results of a recent cross-national study of 4, 5 and 6-year-olds indicate that even children whose fathers are absent and whose mothers must work have conventional notions about parental roles.

Like youngsters in homes where fathers are present, these children see fathers as breadwinners, leaders and decision makers, even though the mother assumes these roles in homes where fathers are absent. The study reaching these conclusions was supported by the National Institute of Mental Health, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in January To:

1. Change to another activity when you begin to feel weary.
2. Stock up on food staples — sugar, flour, rice, canned goods.
3. Get into the habit of saving the items that your community collects for recycling — perhaps it's papers, cans, or glass bottles or all three.
4. Measure your hips, thighs, waist, etc. then recheck again in three months.
5. Start the new year by making home-made bread..
6. Give your house a fresh look with arrangements of sea shells, narcissus bulbs, big leafy plants, lemons and limes.
7. Look at the needlepoint with canvas that has big holes and heavy yarn for quick and easy results.
8. Note this by an unknown author: "It is a great blunder in the pursuit of happiness not to know when we have got it."

Blair's Actions Hit Confidence

Slim hopes for a competent performance by the 78th Illinois General Assembly have been further dimmed by the debacle brought about by House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, following his reelection last week.

Partisan considerations have often had too large a part in legislative decisions in the House, traditionally narrowly divided between the two major parties. This year, a tenuous situation in which the Republicans hold the narrowest possible majority, 89 to 88, has been further complicated by a deep split in the Republican majority.

As the result of Blair's refusal to honor commitments to the minority faction of his party — to which he agreed in order to win reelection — the Democratic minority now appears to be in a stronger position than the Republicans for securing passage of legislation.

Though the Democrats have a mini-split within their own ranks, Minority Leader Clyde Choate, D-Anna, appears in firm control of at least 70 votes — compared to the 59 Republicans who showed themselves as loyal to the speaker.

According to past performance, it would seem likely that Choate stands a better chance to come to the necessary accommodations with the suburban dissidents in his party, and to attract a handful of Republican votes for his programs, than Blair does of soothing the 29 Republicans he deeply angered by backing out on his agreement.

With 89 votes required for passage of any measure in the House, Choate seems to be in the position of power.

The situation of a man wielding the vast power of the speakership and being unable to use it to pass his party's legislative program is a definite possibility in the 78th General Assembly.

After Blair made it evident that he would not keep his agreements on appointments to the Republican leadership, there were immediate cries for his ouster from the speaker's post. To accomplish this, however, would require a coalition of Democrats and Republicans and selection of a compromise candidate. The House members were unable to accomplish this during weeks of political maneuvering, however, and it is unlikely that an effort to remove Blair would accomplish more than further bitterness among all the factions.

There are far too many political considerations in the passage of legislation in Springfield, and we would hope that individual legislators would judge each bill on its merits. In a legislative process where the workload requires representatives to base many of their judgments on the word of those closest to a particular issue, however, it will not be surprising to see issues defeated by Republicans simply because they are favored

Blair retained the leadership of his party in the House, but in doing so destroyed much of the confidence which legislators are entitled to have in the speaker.

It may be that he can restore a measure of confidence by keeping further agreements he made, which would reduce his arbitrary powers and allow legislators to function as true representatives of the people, and not as lackeys to the leadership.

If he fails to do that, we would indeed urge Republicans and Democrats to join forces to eliminate him from power.

Alvin Kulieke

Alvin Kulieke was not the flashiest or most outspoken principal in High School Dist. 214.

Other principals were more likely to adopt the newest educational innovations or to speak the loudest when the school board asked for their opinions.

But an incident several months ago at a Dist. 214 board meeting pointed out in an odd way how Alvin Kulieke had succeeded.

A group of Forest View High School parents were protesting the slowness with which repairs were being made at the building's roof. At one point, an angry man said, "The board only cares about the established schools like Prospect."

The charge was frivolous, of course, and quickly denied by the board members. But it must have caused Kulieke to smile slightly because 15 years ago when he became principal at Prospect no one would have called it an "established" school.

Nelson Lowry, the district's director of non-instructional personnel, recalls that when Prospect opened "we had as tough a situation as you ever saw in your life. When we set the boundaries Arlington was being split. It was a real challenge to open a new school."

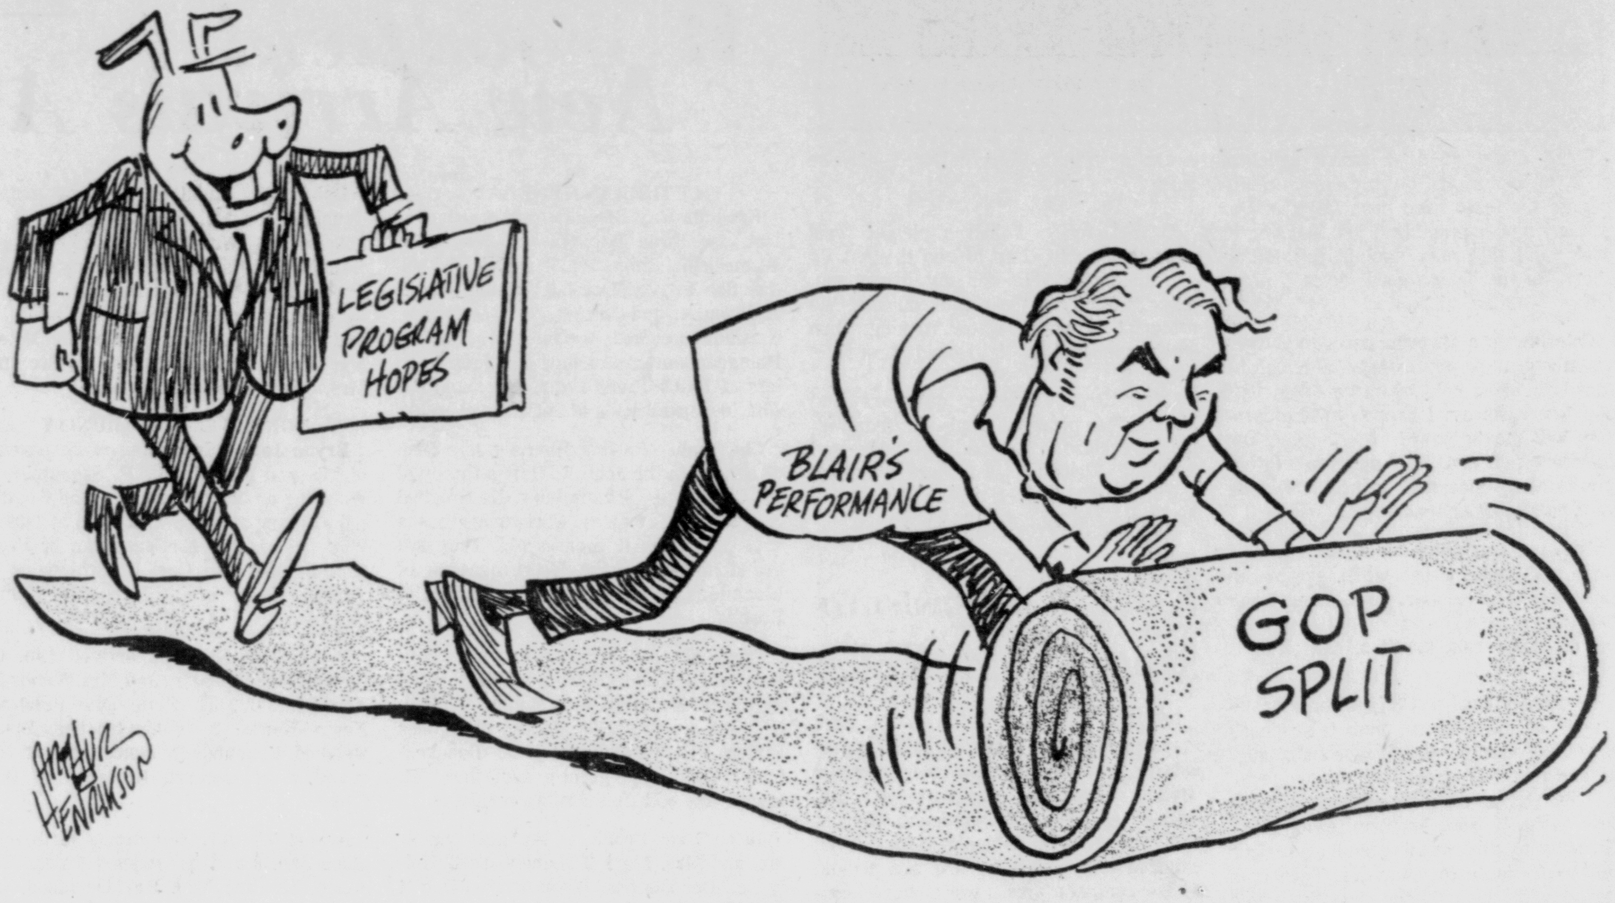

Residents of the district, accustomed to a district with only one high school, were afraid the new school would not be as good as the old. They told each other the school would not be fully accredited and that its athletic teams would be inferior.

But Prospect and its principal proved the fears wrong. The principal may not be able to take full credit for the successes of a school, but as school board members will tell you when they hire a principal, he is a very important part of any school's first years.

Alvin Kulieke served Dist. 214 for 26 years. He was Prospect's first — and only — principal. He is being buried today.

He should be remembered as a quiet, dedicated man who led Prospect High School in its beginning — and into the present, where it serves the Northwest suburbs so well.

I Wasn't Expecting Red Carpet Treatment

The Public's Issue

Diabetes 'An Unknown Disease'

To some, diabetes is a distant disease which can be treated with an occasional injection of insulin. To others, especially parents of diabetic children, the fifth leading cause of death in the United States requires a series of difficult life adjustments.

In the Herald during the past two weeks, there's been a lively debate over the upbringing of children who suffer from this disease. A Herald series in early January quoted the Marshall Furers of Mount Prospect as stressing the problems created by the disease. Others have argued, however, that children can adjust relatively easily to the disease.

Today, Marshall Furer answers the critics — and we invite you, the reader, to get in on the dialogue, too.

by MARSHALL FURER

On Jan. 12 there was published in the Fence Post two letters of rebuttal pertaining to your second of a three part series on child diabetes. Both ladies took exception to the statement about diabetic children not living a normal life. This statement, ladies, was made by Mr., not Mrs., Furer, which I bring up only to show how closely you read the article.

One said, "Count your blessings" that the child is not spastic or retarded. Would she tell a paraplegic to count his blessings that he's not a quadraplegic? Would she tell a blind man how lucky he is not to be deaf as well? Sure, child diabetics live less of an abnormal life compared to children otherwise afflicted, however this is no consolation. Parents want their children to be completely normal. Why should parents of diabetic children count their blessings just because some other child is worse off?

Mrs. Augustin compares the taking of insulin injections to digitalis, antihistamines and false teeth. I'm not that knowledgeable about heart conditions so I'll pass over digitalis. However, if a person doesn't take his antihistamine, he'll sneeze a lot. If a person doesn't slip in his false teeth, eating is more difficult. If a diabetic doesn't take his insulin, he dies. How can she possibly make these kinds of comparisons? She mentions Ron Santo and Mary Tyler Moore living normal lives. Ron became diabetic at 18 years of age and Mary was even older, (hardly children). Neither of these people acknowledged their disease at first because to do so would have meant an end to their "normal" way of life. Ron eventually shaped up and Mary almost died before she took this disease seriously.

Is it normal for a child to be forced to eat on time every day whether he's hungry or not? Is it normal to visit the doctor for some minor injury for fear of gangrene? Is it normal for a child not to be allowed to stand in line with his friends at the Good Humor truck because he just finished his afternoon snack? Is it normal for a long-term diabetic male to be impotent? (If a pre-school child becomes diabetic, by the time he or she reaches the early twenties, they are considered long term.) According to Dr. Etzwiler of the Diabetic Education Center of Minneapolis, impotency is not rare. Is it normal for a long term diabetic female not to be able to have children? This condition admittedly is a lot better now than it was 20 years ago but nevertheless still not rare today. Severe circulation, heart, nerves, kidney, bladder and eye problems are also not rare in the long term diabetic. I could go on and on with these "is it normal" examples. Mrs. Augustin asks "what constitutes a normal life"? I'm sure our definitions vary greatly.

How fortunate she is that her son became diabetic at the age of 6 instead of 1½. She boasts that she and her husband went out at night from the time they brought their 6-year-old home from the hospital. Perhaps in another year and a half, when Julie is 6, the Furer's social life will surpass theirs. As the article clearly points out, it's a lot easier now than it was when Julie was an infant and couldn't communicate or urinate on demand. I wonder if the Augustins ever had the experience of arriving home after a evening out and 10 minutes later having their son go into a severe insulin reaction with locked jaws. A baby sitter could hardly give sweetened orange juice under these conditions. An immediate shot of glucagon is called for. If this did happen to them, I wonder if they would have asked themselves the question, "what if we had stayed out a little longer, what would have happened to our son"? Perhaps if they did experience this trauma, they would have had second thoughts about their social life.

It was very nice of Mrs. Augustin to "not presume to disagree with Mrs. Furer about the severity of insulin reaction." I think she would have been well advised not to disagree with anything said in the article. The purpose of the article primarily was to educate the general public about this dread disease which no one seems to know much about. So to nitpick about a very small part of the article instead of joining the band wagon, only tends to put doubts in the minds of non-diabetics as to the severity of this disease. It's people like the ones who wrote the rebuttal that make it difficult to obtain funds for diabetic research. They paint such a rosy picture of this dread disease that the public doesn't consider diabetic research a worthy enough cause for their charity dollar.

National Diabetes Drive Needed...

We read your articles on diabetics and were greatly pleased that finally something was being said about this disease, especially pertaining to the way it affects the child and its family. Too long it has been kept a secret from the public .Even now some parents are objecting to the writing of these articles because their children might have some sort of stigma put on them or that the children will become frightened after reading about the complications. These children are smarter than their parents give them credit. If they know what can happen, they are more likely to strive to keep themselves regulated.

Mrs. Augustin was objecting to the article about Mrs. Furer's experiences with her young daughter. There is quite a difference between an infant becoming diabetic and a six-year-old child. The tiny child does not understand what is happening and therefore cannot relate to the problem.

Certainly every parent is going to work to make their child's life as happy as possible. That is why we all should pull together and see that a national drive is started and in this way money can be raised for research so that no parent or child shall be limited in any way from living a normal life.

Have all of you parents sent your donations to the Diabetes Association?

...'Normality' For Kids Sought

I must admit Mrs. Furer's statements in your recent article on diabetes were enough to strike terror in the hearts of parents of new diabetic children but I must also sympathize with her as she is still a beginner. The reporter should have interviewed some of us old-timers instead.

I am the mother of a diabetic child and when diabetes was discovered in our child 17 years ago, I, too, felt just as strongly about settling for nothing other than a complete cure for my child. I wanted an instant miracle. Since that time I have learned that my miracle was watching my child develop day by day into a strong, responsible adult. His nutritious diet has kept him healthier than most other children. He now attends college and works every spare minute that he is not in school and in the past four years he has had only two sick days. That is a record that many so called normal children would envy.

Diabetes is an affliction that cannot be seen unless it is called attention to by an over doting parent.

So please, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Furer, treat her as a normal little girl and she will grow up that way.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.: A Life Remembered

We in the SCLC Family are celebrating the 44th birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Because of his commitment to promote the American Dream, his life was taken by a man infflicted by the same disease that Dr. King was fighting — hate. Although the dreamer is dead, his dream is alive and flourishing; yes, even in suburbia.

In honor of Dr. King, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference has declared Jan. 14 through Jan. 20 as Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Week. During this week, we urge teachers to review with their students the words of the Pledge of Allegiance, the Declaration of Independence, the National Anthem and the United States Constitution. The full meaning of the words contained in these great documents and songs must be understood, respected and protected.

We urge churches to review the words love, mercy, and justice.

We urge each man, woman, and child to pray for peace. We urge those persons who find themselves justifying their hate for people who are different from themselves to look within themselves and reject the hate that they really have for themselves. Only by re-committing our lives to the principles of love, forgiveness, and justice will our lives take on true meaning.

Dr. King believed that it was wrong to force black Americans to vacate their seats on a bus to white people, solely because they were black. He moved to correct this practice because he believed that America could live up to its creed that all Americans have a right to life, liberty, and happiness. Dr. King was concerned that often America failed to practice in this country what it preached in foreign lands. He believed that if we really love our fellow man, this love will be reflected in our daily lives. No other word is used as much in the English language as "love;" yet, it is a word that is seldom understood. We really do not love our fellow man if he needs a home and is excluded only because of his skin color or the lack of adequate dollars in his pocket. Unless we become involved, we should not talk of brotherly love when the elderly of our community are wrecked with disease, and forgotten.

A study of the life of Dr. King serves to promote a greater understanding of how far we have come in America; yet, it shows how far we have to go. Dr. King realized that the price to pay for smoothing the troubles of America could take his life; however, he was not concerned with longevity. He was concerned about people.

As we look back only a few years ago to the state of Georgia, a state sweltering withhate against blacks, Jews and Catholics, we can visualize Martin Luther King as a small boy, singing in the church choir, and delivering a weekly newspaper. His belief that God helped those that help themselves served to inspire him to achieve academically. He was only 15 years of age when he entered Boston University. Like most college freshmen, he was unsure what he wanted to study; however, because of cruel acts that he had observed against blacks, he knew that he wanted to become involved in helping black and oppressed people. Like his grandfather and his father, he soon decided to become a minister. While in college he met Coretta Scott, and they soon married. In 1954, the Kings moved to Montgomery, Alabama where he became the minister of the Dexter Baptist Church. Within one year, he received his doctorate degree.

The next fourteen years, Dr. King faced waterhoses, homemade bombs, gasoline torches, snarling dogs, funerals and despair. Many blacks and whites were beaten, killed, and imprisoned in their attempt to end racism in America. Finally, in 1968, while helping a group of Americans that pick up the refuge of our lives — garbage collectors — his life was taken.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steam generated by rumblings deep inside the earth may be a big part of the answer to the "energy crisis."

Geothermal energy could be the most extensive and economical alternative to fossil fuels, Joseph Barnes recently told a United Nations symposium.

Barnes, director of resources and transport at the U.N., said sources of geothermal energy are indicated in over 80 nations.

"It is likely that geothermal energy indications will prove more frequent than petroleum indications, and in 50 years, geothermal energy will be recognized as an energy resource of even greater significance than petroleum," he added.

Barnes pointed out that geothermal sources occur in virtually every geological environment, but petroleum sources are limited to sedimentary areas of the world.

IN THE United States, the development of geothermal energy was slated as a "national goal" by the Steam Act of 1970, and President Nixon further urged such exploitation in his "energy message" of June 4, 1971.

Fifth-eight million acres of Federal lands in 14 states have been designated as possible sites to be leased to private industry for geothermal exploration. A source at the U.S. Interior Department reports explorations at 460,800 acres of Federal land north of San Francisco, called "The Geysers."

According to Jeff Newman, director of the Center for Energy Information, a private, nonprofit organization, Union Oil Co., Getty Oil Co., Magna Energy Co., Gulf Oil Co., Thermal Power Co., and The Signal Companies are exploring or drilling for geothermal energy at "The Geysers."

The Interior Department said two other areas should be opened this year in California: the 794,880-acre "Long Valley" area near Mono Lake, and the 1,094,400-acre "Imperial Valley" area near the Mexican border.

Before any sites are opened for geothermal development, the Interior Department must file a final environmental impact statement under terms laid down by the Environmental Policy Act.

The Sierra Club and other environmental groups fear that geothermal power plants may result in noise and hydrogen sulfide pollution. They say such plants could cause pollution to nearby underground and surface streams.

OVER THE YEARS, a number of geologists have said the presence of underground water may help the stability of the earth's surface, particularly in areas where earthquake activity is high. In fact, injecting water into California's San Andreas fault has often been proposed as a preventive measure against earthquakes.

Exploitation of underground sources of water for energy, especially in fault areas such as those proposed in California, would seem to run counter to the warnings of these geologists.

Nonetheless, a recent National Science Foundation study on geothermal energy, chaired by the former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel said "geothermal energy may prove to be the 'cleanest' source of convertible power readily available to man."

Some 132,000 megawatts could be produced by geothermal resources in this country by 1985, the report said. Current U.S. output is 350,000 megawatts.

Arguments about how often you should trade your car in, for best economy, are endless.

Those who trade every year feel they get high trade-in value for a "like-new" car, and have virtually no repair or maintenance expense.

Those who trade every second or third year claim it's costly to absorb the high first-year depreciation every year. Still others believe in driving a car until faced with major repairs.

A detailed study by the U.S. Department of Transportation on the cost of owning and operating an auto should help most drivers find their own best answer. The fourth in a series of such studies since 1950, the latest gives figures for 1972 models.

THE FIGURES aren't merely estimates. The studies are compiled by going out and recording mileage figures on odometers, adding up repair bills and interviewing owners, dealers, service managers and mechanics.

"Oddly enough," the authors concluded, "many owners do not seem to be aware of many of their automobile costs." Except when confronted with the occasional major bill, the owner blithely "drives his vehicle and seems to conclude that his trips are costing very little."

If you're one such, you might like to know that the 1972 standard four-door sedan chosen for the study, driven the typical 14,500 miles in its first year on the road, cost its owner 16.04 cents every time a mile ticked over on the odometer.

In the second year (typical mileage, 13,000), the cost dropped to 13.81 cents. In the third (11,500 miles), it rose to 14.39.

Those figures are based on normal mileage, however, and individual drivers, working out their own cost per mile from the data in the study, can arrive at their own most advantageous trade-in times.

The owner will balance two figures against each other. One is depreciation plus finance charges — high initially, then decreasing. The other is maintenance — repairs, accessories and tire replacement; low initially, it then begins to increase.

(THOSE WHO pay cash, incidentally, still have to include the 6 per cent "finance charge" to offset loss of interest on the money they take out of the bank.)

The two expenses can be called, for convenience, the financial cost and the maintenance cost. Here's how they diverge during the first three years:

Financial Maintenance:
1st year	$1,486	$102.95
2nd year	900	134.50
3rd year	675	269.33

Thus average yearly costs for the "annual trader," the two-year trader and the three-year trader work out to $1,588.95, $1,311.72 and $1,189.26 respectively.

Corresponding average annual costs for the driver of a two-door compact are $933.68, $788.31 and $718.76.

Again, cost per mile can vary considerably for the owner whose type of driving and annual mileage differ from the "typical" on which these figures are based. Geographic location will also make a difference when all costs — not just those above — are added up to get cents per mile.

To cost out your own car expenses, get the study by writing the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C., for the list of Department of Transportation publications.

Jaffe New Chief At Woodfield

The former property management director for a unique planned city near Washington, D.C., has been appointed manager of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg.

Stanley B. Jaffe's appointment was announced last week by officials of the Taubman Co., one of the developers of the shopping center.

Jaffe was formerly shopping center manager and property management director for the Rouse Co. in Columbia, Md., a model city near the nation's capital.

"Though I'm accustomed to large and handsomely built shopping centers, having spent my entire business career in retailing. I am still very much impressed with Woodfield," Jaffe said.

Stanley B. Jaffe

JAFFE REPLACES Jerry O'Neill who resigned earlier this month. O'Neill had managed the shopping center since its opening in 1971.

A graduate of Brown University, Jaffe has managed shopping centers in Philadelphia and Maryland. Before joining the Rouse Co., he spent nine years in retailing and served as store manager for units of Atlantic Department Stores.

Jaffe now a resident of Schaumburg, also said that he was impressed by the design of the shopping center. "Woodfield's design is so imaginative and so spectacular that it's an architectural triumph as well as a shopping center that caters to the entire span of the public's taste," Jaffe said.

Schaumburg, Chicago Banks Tell Merger Move

Mrs. Mary E. Tabola-Poronsky, president of Damen Savings, announced the merger of 1st Savings of Schaumburg with Damen Savings into one larger association.

The newly merged institution, operating under the name of Damen Savings and Loan Association, will continue to serve the same communities from offices at 5100 S. Damen Ave., Chicago, and 400 W. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg.

As a result of the merger, Damen Savings will have more than $35 million in assets. These resources will help provide the Northwest Suburbs an added source of funds for home financing.

Damen has 56 years of experience and a tradition of conservative management policies, Mrs. Poronsky said. All savings or loan transactions may be handled at either office.

Mrs. Poronsky also announced that plans are currently underway for a new, modern savings building to house the Schaumburg operation. The current Schaumburg office is in temporary quarters, pending the construction of the new building. Details will be announced as plans are developed.

Accounts at both offices of Damen Savings will earn the highest rates allowed by law with interest paid quarterly on each Feb. 28, May 31, Aug. 31 and Nov. 30. Accounts are insured up to $20,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Authorization for the merger of the two institutions was obtained from the State of Illinois and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington.

Service at both institutions will continue without interruption.

Firm Sells Second Insurance Billion

Combined Insurance Co. of America announced it had achieved its second billion dollars face value of individual whole life insurance in force in less than two years after reaching its first billion.

This milestone was announced by W. Clement Stone, founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Combined. He indicated it may be a life insurance industry record as was the achievement of the first billion dollars face value in force in January, 1971, only five years after launching the Little Giant Life Policy.

Paar's Return Was Right Up To Par

by RICK DuBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I'll tell you what I liked best about Jack Paar's comeback with an ABC-TV late-night talk show last week.

I liked the fact that, despite the shakedown period and the technical foulups and the natural feeling around for the right groove, he was nonetheless out there again living his life on television.

I think that is, and always has been a basic clue to his success as a television communicator — the simple opening up of himself, warts and all, to viewers.

In an impersonal age, it is something of a shock — and a joy — to see an alternative to distant, detached performers who remain basically strangers, insulated from us by technology.

THE PROBLEM IS that, even though some performers may recognize this, most of them are not naturally geared to using the fact of video intimacy intelligently.

I personally think those who have succeeded in this area have done so essentially by accident — an accident of instinct, background and personality all coming together in the right medium.

And this is the way it was, and is, with Paar, I believe. I don't think he could be any other way, and the result is that the right man and the right medium came together so effectively that he became a television legend while still a young man.

Not only could he be no other way than he is, but he wouldn't even attempt it. His attitude, plain for all to see is. Look, if you think that at this point in my life I'm going to change in what I am and what I think is worthwhile in the world, then think again. If things work on this show, fine. If not, it's not the end of the world. I can go off to Africa again, or read a book, or make another documentary. Television is nice, but not the only thing.

THERE IS, in short, a continuity to his appearances rather than just a bunch of impersonal gags and sketches. And I think what he was doing by instinct last week in bringing on some of his old video pals, and showing home movies about such things as his interest in animals, was to try to bridge the period in which he was away from a regular series.

THE MIXTURE of new and old began to fill in gaps and give texture to the proceedings so there is something on which to build future outings — something beyond one-liners that disappear into the night by comics with facility and even talent, but little or no originality.

As for the ratings, Paar gave NBC-TV's Johnny Carson a run for his money in New York City, although Carson had more of an edge in Los Angeles. But that's the business of network bookkeepers.

For viewers, all that should matter is whether a show is stimulating, regardless of its longevity. Let the bookkeepers worry about quantity.

FINALLY, A COMMENT about the question, "Is he the same old Paar?" Well, of course there are the same instincts and a basic continuity of approach and numerous similarities — but just as surely he is not the same old Paar. How dreadful it would be if a man didn't widen his scope in a decade.

Why would anyone want him to be exactly the same? When he left the "Tonight" show, which he built up, he was merely a remarkable entertainer. Since then, through his documentaries, he has grown into a first-rate social journalist as well. He doesn't wear funny hats.

MICROPHONE IS LIKE 'EARDRUM' IN NEW HEARING AID

Minneapolis, Minn. A new hearing aid just introduced is expected to offer more usable power, superior sound reproduction, and be more trouble free, thanks to a new development in hearing aid microphone design.

Called the "DrexEl," the small behind-the-ear type aid features a microphone which simulates the human eardrum to solve one of the most common hearing aid problems. A spokesman for Maico Hearing Instruments, makers of the aid, explained the advantages of the new microphone:

"The most delicate part of a hearing aid has always been the tiny "link," finer than a human hair, which connects to the microphone diaphragm. In the new microphone, this link has been replaced by a membrane, which might be compared to the human eardrum."

The new microphone's lack of sensitivity to mechanical vibrations is expected to result in one very important benefit for hearing aid wearers: aids may be used at higher volume settings without annoying feedback squeal and distortion.

Exceptionally "clean," clear sound is claimed for the "DrexEl" aid. A hearing aid engineer making comparison tests between the new microphone and a standard unit described the difference as, "...comparable to the difference between a hi-fi system and a table radio."

Full information on the new aid is available by writing Maico Hearing Instruments, 7375 Bush Lake Road, Minneapolis, Mn. 55435.

Questions

Revamped Tourney Setup Puzzles Many Coaches

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

The immediate reaction is a positive one.

Later the doubts come.

And in the long run, the lineups for wrestling district and sectional competition raise more questions than they answer in 1973.

This is not unique. Coaches and participants have been pondering over the playoff situation in all Illinois sports for what seems like eons. It's safe to say that no 50 billion dollar computer coupled with all the heart at the South Pole and all the soul in Harlem will ever devise a playoff system that everyone finds equitable.

But maybe a one-day trip through the Northwest suburbs would help a bit.

The suburbs are, after all where it's at: Specifically, for wrestling at least, the suburbs to the north and west of Chicago.

It doesn't take a computer to figure that of 72 top finalists downstate last year (first through sixth places at 12 weights), nearly half, or 33, come from what are the northern and western suburban sectional sites this winter.

Two years ago ten of the 24 grapplers in the state finals came from schools now entered in these sectionals. This doesn't even include the matmen from DeKalb and Mundelein who have now been shifted out toward Rockford.

Just for the immediate Evanston Sectional area compare 19 (of those 72 '72 finalists) with six for Belvidere, six for East Moline, six for Normal and eight for Wood River, not to even mention Chicago.

"What they've done is put six of the best districts in the state into one hopper," shrugged Elk Grove's John Moore, one who is distinctly opposed to the revamped setup. "Anybody with a good team like Maine East is bound to get hurt under this kind of setup," he added.

The first reaction to this new setup, which features six districts feeding into a sectional rather than four, is a good one. By trimming down the number of entries at each district, every team has a better chance of advancing their charges one notch at least.

But then:

"It looks like we've got a new meatgrinder," offered Rick Gerz of Schaumburg. "I have to question some of the motivation behind a system that has buses passing each other on their way to the sectionals."

Gerz cited Libertyville district winners, who go to Belvidere outside of Rockford, passing by Antioch representatives on their way to Evanston as a good example.

There are any number of similar examples to this type of reasoning. Luther North of Chicago for instance, now competing at Lake Forest and Prospect kids going all the way to Ridgewood in Norridge while next door neighbors zip over to Rolling Meadows.

But this sort of crisscrossing might just be a cure for rather than an ill of the system, if it could be worked out properly. With so much talent concentrated in one area, it seems only fair that it be spread out to afford more grapplers an opportunity to get down state.

"Otherwise you have perhaps four of five good kids competing for just two spots at one place while two mediocre wrestlers earn the same honors somewhere else," added Moore.

Obviously this means the 16 wrestlers who eventually earn those coveted berths in the state finals at each weight are not going to necessarily be the 16 best in the state otherwise.

And in the past, lopsided opening round scores have hinted of precisely this malady.

Are there any other tonics which could help? Tom Porter, whose Hersey club has won the last two state tournaments, thinks a seating system for some of the better teams might help.

"I don't know how they arrived at the present arrangement. I think the sectionals might be a little better balanced but there are sill some questionable situations, like having Fenton come over our way and bunching all the Arlington Heights schools in together."

Continued Porter, "I'd like to see them seat the top 20 teams in the state. It might also help to break the playoffs down into two separate tournaments, to encourage some of the smaller schools to activiate wrestling programs."

Not all the area coaches are concerned with the new alignments. Wheeling's Bob Schulze and Palatine's Bob Sonneman have accepted the news with affirmative or at least resigned reactions.

"The sectionals are always going to be tough," noted Sonneman, who figures his club is still a year away. "I kind of like our district now, though," he continued. "They've taken two of the tougher teams out of it so our chances are improved."

Schulze, whose Wildcats have headed up toward Mundelein the past few years, has a similar opinion about the playoffs. "I think it was more convenient for us before and worked to our advantage but we could do just as well this year through the district at least. I think our sectional is more difficult now, but we'll cross that road when we get to it."

Everyone in the Evanston sectional will eventually cross that road. It's not going to be rerouted now. Whether it's the most equitable remains to be seen. What does look rather inevitable is that it should be one barnburner of a tournament.

A Fast Finish To Duel Portion Of MSL Season

While nobody was looking, a wrestling season ended last weekend.

The campaign reaching its conclustion was the Mid-Suburban League's dual meet wrestling slate. Although the conference tournament is nearly a month away and most clubs still have several meets remaining with loop foes, for all intents and purposes the points for the regular season have been divvied up already.

Last weekend's climax happened in dramatic fashion. Conant and Elk Grove met on Friday with unbeaten divisional records and when the Cougars disposed of the Grenadiers, it appeared that John Moore's club was eliminated from the running.

Saturday, however, Forest View (an earlier loser to Elk Grove) turned around and nipped Conant. They had stopped Schaumburg Friday and the result was to leave all three clubs owning 4-1 marks and a slice of the South Division pie.

To the North the windup was more decisive. Arlington treked to Hersey Friday needing no less than victory to prevent the Huskies from grabbing their third straight division title. Tom Porter's host bunch resigned hadily though, 31-15.

At the opposite ends of the poles, Palatine and Prospect emerged victorious over Rolling Meadows and Glenbard North respectively. All four units had gone into action Friday winless in their division and the Pirates were able to escape the cellar in the North while the Knights climbed out of the basement in the South.

Another bout Friday saw Wheeling crunch Fremd 28-17. Following last weekend's competition the Cougars, Grens and Falcons each picked up five points and Hersey claimed six tallies to be computed into the conference meet at Arlington, Feb. 9.

These dual meet points will be added with tourney points (12 for the winner, 11 for the runnerup, 10 for third, etc.) to determine a conference mat champ. Wheeling will take four points into that gathering, Fremd and Schaumburg three apiece, Palatine and Prospect two each, and Rolling Meadows and Glenbard one each.

Here's how action unwound in the MSL last weekend:

CONANT GROUNDS GRENADIERS

In a battle of the South's unbeatens Friday, Merv Miller's visiting Cougar band dominated eight out of 12 matches to win handily, 31-19.

Grenadiers Craig Mann and Rick Morris kept their unbeaten skeins alive with impressive wins but the only other Gren points were claimed at 112 on a decision by Larry Benavidez and 167 where Jeff Steinbock pinned to up his record to 7-4-1.

Conant jumped out in front early on shutouts by Keith McCreary and John Armstrong. They were trailing again after 126 pounds 13-7, but John Beck posted his fifth blanking of the season and his teammates proceded to capture six of the final seven bouts.

Cougar winners included Dan Szymkowiak and Bob Zepeda by fall and Bill Kppari, Larry Wood and Dave Thomas by decision.

HUSKIES ROAR PAST ARLINGTON

The skirmish betweenthe North's undefeated crews was just as close. Hersey won eight of 12 bouts, breaking up a tight meeting with two closing pins to triumph 31-15.

Jeff Reinhard and Kevin Pancratz initiated the dramatic finish for the host Huskies. Reinhard, who has wrestled in more bouts than anyone else in the league, remained undefeated in the MSL with a 3:44 pin at 185 after working up a 14-1 advantage.

Then Pancratz posted his 18th victory without a defeat this season by fall at 3:50. He was barely edging his foe, John Norton, 5-4 at the time.

The Cardinals were trailing only 19-15 prior to the final two events. Murray Reed had pinned for them and Scott Bittner, Tom Patterson and Steve Frankovic had all posted easy decisions.

Hersey's wins through 155 were contributed by Joe Rizza, Kurt Weisenborn, Mike Czarnecki, Mike Pusatera, Massimo Busterna and Pat Hart.

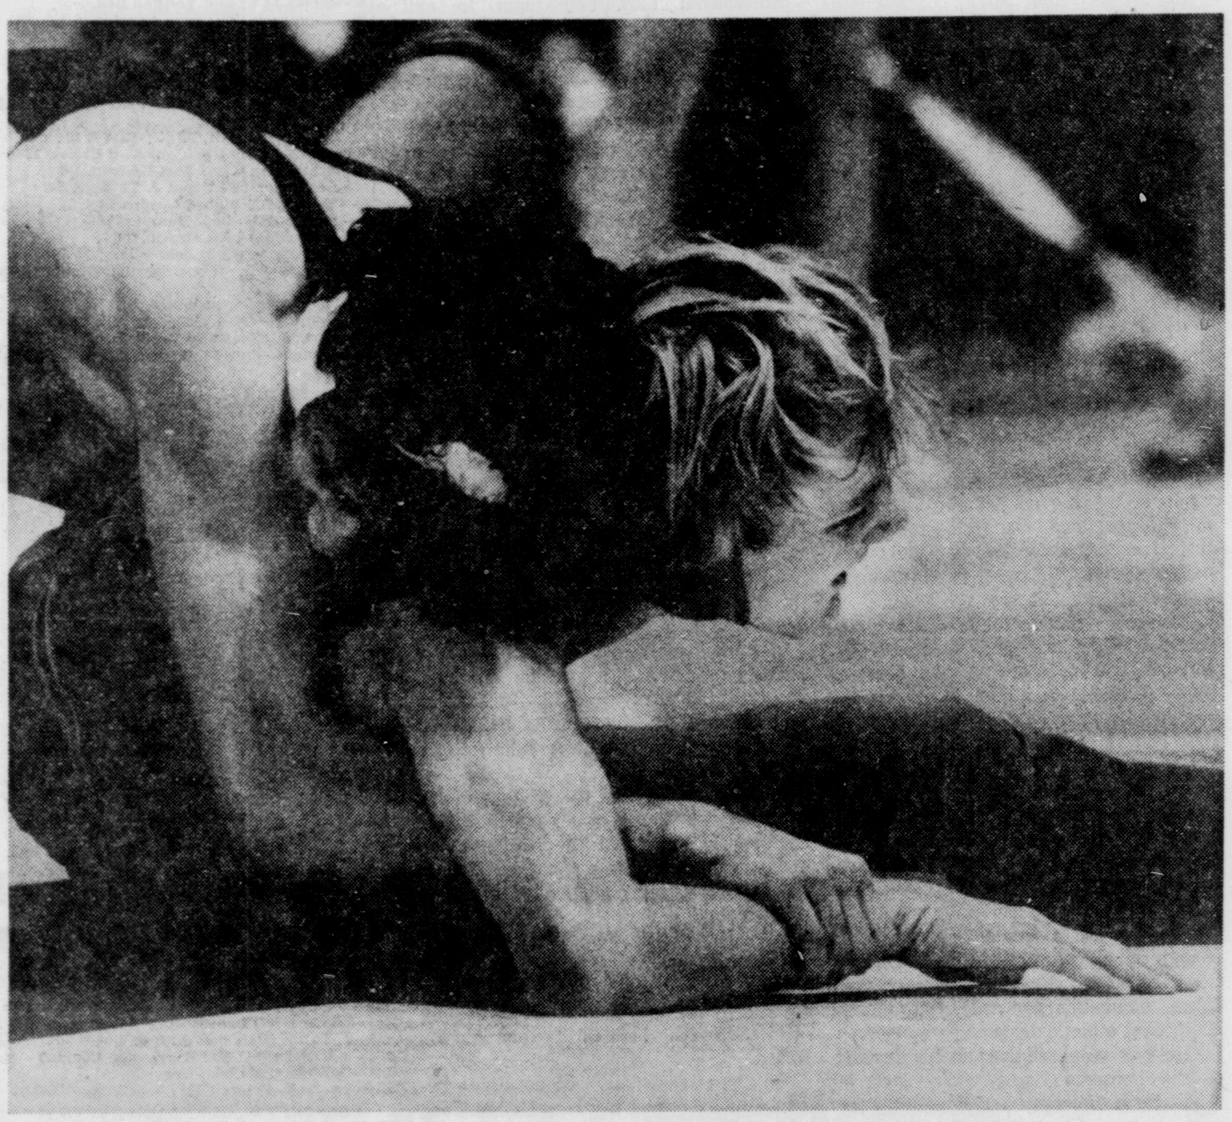

FALCONS FLIP SAXONS 33-23

Forest View mentor Dave Theesfeld inserted a pair of new faces in his lineup and both proceeded to triumph in helping the Falcons keep pace with the leaders in the South Friday by trimming Schaumburg.

The Falcon rookies just happened to be paired off with a couple of newcomers for Rick Gerz and company. As a result Greg Warren posted a pin at 126 and Morgan Cotten eased out a 7-5 decision at 167 to help the visitors' cause.

Other Falcon winners were more pre-

A LOT 'O MOTTA. Dave Motta (left) of Fremd demonstrates the kind of offensive handiwork that has established him as one of the top area grapplers. The 119 pounder has won nine of his first 10 bouts, shutting out four foes and outscoring his opposition 77-26.

4 Winners, 3 Losers Over Weekend

Pirates Show Profit In Non-League Tests

There were four winners and three losers as Mid-Suburban League wrestling clubs ventured outside their circuit Saturday for non-conference competition.

Palatine enjoyed the best weekend of anyone, coupling a pair of Saturday victories with their loop win over Rolling Meadows. The Pirates clubbed Niles West and edged Romeoville in a double dual on their own mats Saturday.

Wheeling was a double winner over the weekend, adding Evanston to their growing list of victims Saturday, and Meadows bounced back from their Pirate setback to down hosting Lake Park. Also rebounding from a Friday defeat was Schaumburg, at the expense of visiting Notre Dame.

Hersey and Arlington, after their big faceoff Friday, both suffered letdowns on the road. The Huskies were nipped by Addison Trail while the Cards were just barely beaten by Hinsdale Central. Prospect also lost Saturday, at home, to Maine South.

Here's the rundown for non-conference combat:

PALATINE 22, ROMEOVILLE 21
PALATINE 30, NILES WEST 18

John Lonergan and Lon Marchel played key roles in the Pirate double triumph. Both won twice Saturday and with the matches set up on a rotating basis rather than going from light up to heavy weights, it was this duo who forged the come-from-behind victory over the Lockport-based Spartans.

Bob Sonneman's outfit was down 21-13 with Lonergan and Marchel left to go. That meant both had to win and one had to stick his foe if Palatine wanted to win.

Lonergan dug in but had to settle for a 9-0 romp. Marchel went all the way into the third stanza before getting the crucial fall at 4:19.

Other Pirate winners against Romeoville were Jim Hanetho, Al Koenig, John Tuttle and Bruce DeWyze. DeWyze picked up four team points with his 12-2 decision at 185 and this also proved helpful.

The Indians did not give Palatine nearly the battle. Only four Niles grapplers triumphed while Pirate pointage was gained by Joe Kmiec, Hanetho, Chuck Tuttle, Rich Harold, Randy McAlister, Lonergan, Jim Tuttle and Marchel. The wins by Hanetho and McAlister were both by fall.

Palatine is now even up for the season overall at 6-6.

WHELING 32, EVANSTON 12

The visiting Wildcats broke loose at the midway point after three successive 2-2 draws and romped past the Wildkits in improving their ledger to 10-4 on the campaign trail.

Bob Daul on and Neal Kendall sandwiched shutout victories around Tom Kozimor's 4 setback. Then it was Kevin Lewis, Mike Millay and Jay Slezak all knotting at 2-2 to make it a 12-9 Wheeling lead.

The span did not remain close any longer however. Kent Lewis romped 7-0, Steve Jorgenson wracked up a 12-6 conquest and Mike Kaymans and Ken Smith both breezed to 14-0 decisions. Later Bob Wargo capped things off with a heavyweight win by forfeit.

ROLLING MEADOWS 28
LAKE PARK 19

The charges of John Ellis led nearly all the way in trimming the Lancers to raise their non-conference dual record to 5-4. Rolling Meadows is now 5-9 overall.

Paul Hyneman led off for the guests with an 11-2 verdict but Meadows dropped four points at 105 and after Roger Mattix had fought to a 2-2 stalemate the scoreboard favored Lake Park 6-5.

Newcomer Mike Fava subsequently won by forfeit to put his Mustangs ahead to stay. Gary Ahr followed up with a 16-6 decision and Larry Johnson also triumphed immediately afterwards.

Later Don Bohac, Kevin Harrington and Mike Caravello all blanked their opponents to wrap things up for the visitors. Bohac, on the strength of a 14-0 whitewash is now 9-4 on the season.

SCHAUMBURG 32, NOTRE DAME 20

Schaumburg's youth movement, forced on coach Rick Gerz by a number of key injuries, paid dividends at the expense of

Quite A Week For Zid

St. Viator wrestling coach John Zid had a couple of nice things happen to him last week.

His Lion grapplers returned to the conference win trail by breezing past hosting Montini Saturday, 48-15.

The previous Tuesday he had become a father again, his wife giving birth to their second daughter.

Against Montini, Viator picked up 24 bonus points via forfeits but didn't really need them in picking up their fourth triumph in the Suburban Catholic League to go with a loss and a tie.

The hosts rang up only three wins and never really were close after Tim Marwitz had posted an opening pin and Dan May and Mark Malouf had followed up with topheavy decisions. Later Dave Nozicka romped 17-2 and Mike Mooney and John Breen worked for pins to wrap things up.

The forfeit wins were earned by John Marwitz, Sean Reilly, Kurt Heerdegan and Ralph Bosch.

St. Viator had lost to Carmel and tied with Notre Dame in their two most previous loop hookups after winning three straight to start off.

Jim Cook —Crown MSL Dual Meet Champs

Alvin Kulieke

IT WAS ONLY a question of time before someone in the Prospect fieldhouse recognized the peculiarity.

The Prospect varsity basketball team was playing Glenbard North when the inevitable inquiry was made.

"Where's Mr. Kulieke?" the woman asked. "I haven't seen him yet."

A home Prospect athletic event in the absence of Principal Alvin Kulieke was about as common as an unlighted football field, a diamond without dugouts, a district track meet at night at another facility.

Alvin Kulieke, Prospect's principal for 15 years, died Sunday evening at age 64. His final objective was to attend Friday night's Prospect-Glenbard North basketball game.

"That's very indicative of just how deeply involved Al Kulieke was in the Prospect sports program," District 214 Superintendent Dr. Edward Gilbert said of the woman's remark. "The people of this community expected him to be there. That's as sound a testimony that you'd anticipate from someone who regularly attended sports functions at Prospect."

Through a noticeably subdued atmosphere Monday morning, Dr. Gilbert came across the public address system at Prospect and "stopped students in their tracks," according to Knight football coach Don Williams, "with the moving message he delivered.

"From my standpoint," Williams continued, "I used to be disappointed if Mr. Kulieke failed to come into our dressing room following a game. I wasn't disappointed very often. He'd want to be the first one to congratulate the players — win or lose.

"At the beginning of a season, he wouldn't come to me and say, 'We have to win this year.' Instead he'd ask 'How many kids do we have out for the program?' and 'How does it look this year?' "

"He was just a tremendous supporter of high school sports," reiterated District Coordinator of Physical Welfare and Driver Education Howard Lester, Prospect's first athletic director.

"He was very religious in his support of the Prospect Booster Club and he made them function — not under pressure or strain — but because they enjoyed working under him.

"It's very difficult to express my feeling in words," Lester continued. "He was just a great person — educationally and athletically — in perfect complementary proportions to each other. He was a completely honest man who told you his convictions and why."

A veteran of over 30 years of service in the district, Kulieke brought a similar response from the Knights' initial football coach Bill Beckman, presently Forest View's athletic director.

"The thing you have to realize," Beckman remembered, "is that in the beginning, getting Prospect underway was a challenge, both educationally and athletically.

"He never missed a game while I was coaching and I think this reflected Prospect's relatively absent transitional period before becoming a full-fledged contender.

"He was greatly instrumental in getting Prospect off on the right foot. His recognition of sports made our jobs much easier."

Prospect's athletic facilities always welcomed the unusual or the extravagant. When the Knight teams were not employing the various gymnasiums, tracks or fields, Kulieke was busy making arrangements.

He invited the Northwest Travelers' professional basketball team to call Prospect its home, or accepted the district track meet again, or staged the finals of the state gymnastics championships again or introduced the Roller Derby to the Northwest suburbs or welcomed the Chicago Bulls to make a preseason appearance, or many, many other innovations.

"I can always recall receiving a bid to host a state meet and approaching him with the news," Prospect's present athletic director George Gattas said.

"You could see the twinkle in his eyes with the thought that Prospect would be the site of an important athletic event. He took pride in putting on contests. He liked to see our facilities in use."

'He was a great believer in sports — a friend of athletics," echoed Prospect's original basketball coach and now Hersey's athletic director Dick Kinneman.

"He sought the big tournaments out of pride and love for sports. He will always be remembered as a leader — a most honorable leader — who commanded respect and received it."

Alvin Kulieke's rapport with his students was another admirable attribute. He could frequently be found discussing the issues of the day during the hectic passing periods in the middle of the halls.

Nothing superceded the welfare of his students, whether it was while his masterful voice bellowed the National Anthem prior to the state gymnastics meet or while casting a vote for the proposed state football playoff.

"I'd go into his office with the recommendations of my coaches," Gattas added. "You could sense that he was very cognizant of any proposal dealing with sports long before I stepped into his office.

He was especially cooperative because he knew that my recommendations reflected the thinking of the coaches and myself, but he'd investigate the matter further — just for his own benefit — before casting his vote."

The title "principal" seemed insignificant for Alvin Kulieke. He was more than a principal at Prospect High School for the past 15 years.

He was a pioneer, an educational wizard, a sports enthusiast . . . a legend.

dictable. John Gross, Dick Thompson, Steve Dolphin and Chuck Meade all improved their records, Meade moving up from 185 to post a 15-1 romp at heavyweight and Dolphin remaining unbeaten with a second-round pin.

Saxon victors included Gary Evans, also still undefeated, Rich Kuchnia, Glen Komerska and Terry Ruddy. Ruddy is also a relative newcomer although he posted his second straight conference pin.

One other bout had Saxon Dan Yerman in a stalemate with Dennis Beach.

WILDCATS WHIP FREMD

Bob Schulze's hosting 'Cats dropped only three faceoffs and led all the way in disposing of Fremd 28-17 in a battle for third place in the North.

Only Vikings victors were Dave Motta, John Lynch and Tom Hoey, with Lynch issuing Jay Slezak his first conference setback, 7-0. Fremd also earned draw pointage from Steve McGuinn and Gary Peterson,who tied Steve Jorgenson and Ed Wargo respectively.

The rest of the spoils went to the home team. Dom Daulton, Tom Kozimer, Neal Kendall, Mike Millay, Mike Kamins and Ken Smith won by decision and Kent Lewis triumphed by default.

PIRATES MOVE OUT OF CELLAR

After five frustrating conference setbacks, including a crossover loss to Conant, Bob Sonneman's Palatine team moved into the conference winner's circle with a narrow 23-20 win over Rolling Meadows.

The Pirates had come from behind when Paul Hyneman, Roy Carlstrom and Roger Mattix all opened with wins for the visiting Mustangs. Rich Harold then topped Gary Ahr of the guests and Greg Schultz, Randy McAlister and John Lonergan followed up with Pirate triumphs and their team was ahead to stay.

Also winning for Paltine were John Tuttle and Bruce DeWyze. Meadows winners were Don Bohac and Mike Caravello while Kevin Harrington dadlocked with Lon Marchel of the hosts.

PROSPECT PINS PANTHERS

Bill Harlow's Knights forfeited a pair of weights but had enough manpower remaining to topple Glenbard North into the South cellar 26-21 Friday.

Prospect nearly forfeited three bouts. Phil Audet weighed in right on the line, after chewing down his finger nails and his subsequent 10-0 shutout keyed a decisive finish for the visitors.

With three contests to go GBN owned a 21-13 command. Audet's win cut the lead by four and Steve Emil put Prospect on top with a third-round pin at 185.

Randy DiVito then iced things at heavyweight with a 6-0 decision.

Earlier wins by Prospect were recorded by Jim Bethel, Al Weber, Steve Brice and Randy Cherwin. Another expected triumph didn't happen for the Knights at 155 when Larry Mace absorbed his second setback of the season at the hands of Panther Lon Yeary, 4-2.

FOREST VIEW WINGS PAST CONANT

The contest which knotted things into a three-way ball in the South occurred Saturday when Forest View eased past Conant 22-19.

Among a number of tough confrontations, John Gross of the Falcons dropped Keith McCreary 10-2 at 98 and Chuck Meade nosed out Conant's Bill Koppari 12-10 at 185. All four grapplers entered the contest with excellent records.

Forest View's fledgling varsity grapplers, Greg Warren and Morgan Cotten, both won for the second day in a row, and Mike March and Steve Dolphin added winning decisions to the Falcon cause.

Gaining nods for Conant were John Armstrong Jim Thomas, Dan Szymkowiak and John Beck. Beck toppled Dennis Beach 11-3 in another touted confrontation.

Meanwhile Dave Thomas of Conant and Dick Thompson battled to a 1-1 standoff at 138 and Mike Petran and Bob Zepada fought to a heavyweight 2-2 draw.

Sectional Setup Matches Area Boys

All in one bag.

This is where area wrestling coaches discovered they were when the long-awaited lineups for State District mat tournaments were finally released last week.

In contrast to past seasons when local grapplers filtered through three different sectionals en route to the championship finals downstate, everyone must go through the same one this winter.

And the meet in subject — at Evanston — hints of replacing Leyden as the toughie sectional around the state in 1973 (see separate story).

There is one other conspicious change in this year's general tourney lineup. The districts are smaller and there subsequently more of them now.

Among the half dozen district meets feeding into Evanston are gatherings at Rolling Meadows, Roselle, Norridge and Lake Forest. The four District 211 schools, Conant, Fremd, Palatine and Schaumburg, will compete at the Lake Park-hosted tourney, and Wheeling will be off by themselves (as uaual) at Lake Forest.

Prospect will also stray from the local pack this time, to participate in the Ridgewood-sponsored district. That leaves Arlington, Forest View, Hersey, St. Viator, Elk Grove and the host Mustangs joining with Fenton in what should be a real tussle at Meadows.

Throughout the state 42 districts will channel into seven sectionals the second weekend in February. Chicago champs will then join with the winners at those seven sectionsl to eventually determine state champions at Champaign, March 2-3.

Following are the lineups at the six districts feeding into Evanston:

ANTIOCH — Antioch, Grayslake, Warren, North Chicago, Round Lake, Waukegan, Zion-Benton.

LAKE FOREST — Luther North, Deerfield, Highland Park, Lake Forest, Glenbrook North, Stevenson, Wheeling.

NORRIDGE (RIDGEWOOD) — St. Patrick, Maine North, Maine West, Prospect, Notre Dame, Ridgewood, Maine East, Maine South.

NORTHFIELD (NEW TIRER WEST) — Holy Trinity, Evanston, Glenbrook South, New Trier West, Niles East, Niles North, Niles West, New Trier East.

ROLLING MEADOWS — Arlington, Forest View, Hersey, St. Viator, Fenton, Elk Grove, Rolling Meadows.

ROSELLE (LAKE PARK) — Barrington, Cary Grove, Crystal Lake, Conant, Palatine, Fremd, Lake Park, Schaumburg.

the Dons Saturday.

Terry Ruddy at 112 wrestled his fifth varsity match and won 1-0, his third win of the season. Kurt Ostick at 126 and Morrie Bello at 167 completed only their first weekend of varsity competition, but they both won big to offset a pair of forfeit setbacks yielded by the Saxons at the two heavyweights.

Gerz was probably not too hopeful after losing at 98 and seeing his unbeaten grappler, Gary Evans, settle for a 4-4 tie at 105 to Vito Vee. However Ruddy followed up with his win, Rich Kuchnia blitzed his foe in 19 seconds, Ostick won 9-2, Dan Yerman won 2-0, Larry Annable won 9-1 and Glen Komerska pinned at 3:46 and the Saxons were home free.

Later Bello forged a pin at 2:45 just for good measure and Schaumburg experienced their fifth win in 14 contests overall.

HINSDALE CENTRAL 27
ARLINGTON 26

Both sides won the same number of bouts but the Red Devils came up with the mostest at the lastest to wring out a heartbreaking victory over their guests.

After Steve Frankovic pinned for the Cards at 167, his team owned a seemingly comfortable 26-15 bulge. But both the 185 and heavyweight bouts were also won by fall and both went the way of Hinsdale to completely turn things around.

Earlier Arlington victories were by Murray Reid, 4-2, Jeff Whitnell, 2-1, Dave Weber by pin, Scott Bittner 7-0 and Tom Patterson 6-0.

The setback lowered the Cardinal season mark to 5-4-1.

ADDISON TRAIL 24, HERSEY 21

The Blazers took a commanding lead in the early going and held off a late surge to deal the Huskies their third setback of the year in 16 meets.

Possibly the most stunning blow was right at the start of the meet when Joe Rizza was pinned in the last half minute after taking a healthy 6-2 lead over Trail's Ralph Cortez. Cortez was the 98-pound champ at the Glenbrook South Holiday Tourney.

Kurt Weisenborn countered for visitors 4-1 at 105 but Addison won the next three straight and took an 18-3 edge in the meet.

Late, despite decisions by Massimo Busterna, Dave Schachner, Pat Hart and Brian Nelson, Hersey found their hosts out of reach after 185. Kevin Pancratz pinned at heavyweight but his team still came up three points short.

MAINE SOUTH 33, PROSPECT 14

Prospect suffered through several surprise setbacks and coupled with forfeits at 112 and 145, they were easy prey for the Hawks Saturday.

Jim Bethel was blanked at 105, only his fifth setback in 15 contests, and Randy Cherwin absorbed a 7-2 loss at 138 that lowered his slate to 9-3-3. The only countering force was Al Weber's tie at 119 to Chuck Myers after Myers had previously trimmed Weber 5-1 en route to a Prospect Holiday Tourney crown.

Weber's stalemate was the only Prospect pointage through the first two thirds of the meet and his team trailed 30-2 by then. Larry Mace, Phil Audet and Randy DiVito all triumphed after that but it was not nearly enough to overtake Maine.

Meadows Skates Into 1st In Metro Hockey Division

by LARRY EVERHART

"It sure feels good to be in first-place."

Jim Burgin, coach of the Rolling Meadows hockey club of high school students, and his team deserve to enjoy that lofty status at least for this week.

They never would have guessed they'd be in this position this soon a few weeks ago, when Palatine was whipping everybody in sight, winning 12 straight games and its first five in the Northwest Division of the Chicago Metropolitan Hocke League.

But Palatine continues to slump, and Rolling Meadows is taking advantage. Meadows was the only Northwest Division winner in Sunday's six games against North Division clubs at the Arlington Ice Spectrum, while Palatine lost its third straight to drop out of first for the first time.

Rolling Meadows outlasted Evanston 7-6 in a wild, see-saw battle with pucks raining into the nets like hailstones. Meanwhile, Palatine was being upset by underdog Lane Tech, 8-6 in the same type of game. Lane was one of the weakest teams in its division early in the season.

In other games the North Division continued to assert its superiority over the Northwest as New Trier East downed St. Viator 5-2, Notre Dame clubbed Arlington 5-1 and Maine South crushed Hersey 10-1.

Craig Glander and John Verdico were the heros of Rolling Meadows' big victory, each notching a three-goal hat trick. Marc Klemp helped with two assists.

"The guys really skated and worked hard," said Burgin. 'This was by far our best game. Evanston played well, too. They have a winning record and beat Palatine 9-1, so we were really happy about this one.

'Palatine losing to Lane was a shocker. They and our team both have tough games next week. St. Viator is right behind us, too. We were the only Northwest team to win, so we picked up two points on everybody in the division."

The Meadows-Evanston game was a barnburner as the lead changed hands four times and there were five ties. Rolling Meadows moved to a 4-2 lead but it was 4-4 after two periods. Then Evanston twice led in the third period, only to have Meadows come back.

Palatine was also involved in a hair-raiser. It wiped out an early 3-0 deficit against Lane and went ahead 6-5 with five minutes left before the score was tied on a penalty shot. Then two quick goals decided it.

Coach Ed Price felt his team played better this game, but needs production from its second and third lines. One line got all of Palatine's goals — Mike McSweeney, Bill Carney and Paul Vrtis each netting two.

St. Viator, which had won two straight cross-division games and crept within one point of first place, was cooled off by undefeated (8-0) New Trier East, which claimed a 5-2 victory. Mike Brawley and Don Menoni recorded Viator's two goals.

The Lions checked well against powerful New Trier in the first periods and were down only 2-0, but it soon became 5-0 in the last period before the pair of consolation scores.

Arlington also was in its game until the third period, trailing by just two until that point before giving up three more. Tom Cronin was the Cardinals' only scorer with a new addition, Wayne Johnson, getting the assist.

"They kept us in our zone in the first period," said Arlington coach Guy Vena. "We played better after that but our defense broke down a little. We weren't checking them off the puck. I think we have good personnel, but we're not playing together."

Hersey remained winless in league competition with its one-sided loss to a very impressive squad, Maine South. John Schultz was the Huskies' only scorer with Steve Beck assisting.

This Sunday will be the fourth and final week of cross-division games, which should be good news for Northwest clubs. A battle of division leaders will highlight the usual six-game schedule in the final contest at 9 p.m., when Rolling Meadows collides with New Trier.

Other matchups (all at the Arlington Ice Spectrum) will be Hersey vs. Notre Dame at 1:30, Arlington vs. Lane Tech at 3:00, Palatine vs. Maine South at 4:30, Driscoll vs. Evanston at 6:00 and St. Viator vs. Prosser at 7:30. The latter game, like the 7:30 battle each Sunday, will be broadcast by WWMM-FM radio of Arlington Heights, 92.7 on the dial, with Dick Thomas doing the play-by-play.

All teams are self-sponsoring clubs of high school students, not an official part of the high schools themselves.

Just Dogs

by Dave Terrill

International K.C judges —

A panel of 24 judges from 15 states has been named by the International Kennel Club of Chicago to judge the all-breed spring show March 31 and April 1, 1973, at the International Amphitheatre.

The Chicago show is one of the largest in the United States, with an entry last year at the Spring show of 3675 dogs. In addition, more than 3150 dogs were entered for the second one-day unbenched Fall show held Nov. 4, 1972.

The Best in Show judge for the 1973 Spring show will be William W. Brainard Jr. of Marchall, Va. He will pick the top entry from among the six group winners — sporting, hound, working, terrier, toy and non-sporting.

Group judges will be: Hollis Wilson, Amherst, Wis., sporting; A. Peter Knoop, Weston, Conn., hound; Howard H. Tyler, New Fairfield, Conn., working; Anthony Stamm, Kalamazoo, Mich., terrier; Joseph Faigel, Southfield, Mich., toy; Maxwell Riddle, Ravenna, Ohio, non-sporting.

Judging the obedience classes will be Dr. Harry M. Burns of Willoughby Hills, Ohio, Erwin C. Lange of Roselle, and Max McCammon of Deleville, Ind. Lee Murray of Fort Worth, Texas will judge the Miscellaneous class. Maxwell Riddle and Hollis Wilson will judge the Junior Showmanship competition.

The show will be superintended by Webb Dog Shows, Inc. Premium lists and entry blanks may be secured by writing either the International Kennel Club, 4300 S. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., 60609, or Webb Dog Showf, Inc., P.O. Box 546, Auburn, Ind., 46706. Entries will close Wednesday, March 14, at 5 p.m. in Auburn, Ind.

New standards out —

The American Kennel Club has the new standards for the Akitas and the revised standards for Cocker Spaniels now ready. The latter will become effective at shows held on and after Feb. 1, 1973. The Akita standard will become effective April 4, 1973.

Westminster show —

The entry for the Westminster Kennel Club show closed with 3027 dogs of 126 breeds and varieties. The show will be held Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 12, and 13, at Madison Square Garden in New York City. .

In order for a dog to be eligible for entry at Westminster, it must have been credited by the American Kennel Club with one or more championship points.

The breeds in the working, terrier and non-sporting groups will be benched and judged on Monday and the breeds in the sporting, hound and toy groups will be benched and judged on Tuesday, reversing the order of the last show.

Barks & Bays —

Snow time brings to mind sled dogs and their pulling ability. The largest load ever shifted by one dog was 3142 lb. sledge pulled by "Charlie," a Huskey owned by Larry Clendenon, Anchor Point, Alaska.

Better TV Signals

by Ed Landwehr

More than half of the television sets in this area are color, and you have probably noticed that antennas are looking more and more sophisticated. "Ghosts" are usually the fault of the antenna, and with color they can be particularly annoying because these signals require a "broader band." Better antenna installation will invariably make your color TV far superior.

Landwehr's Home Appliances specializes in all kinds of electronic maintenance, and we understand this area for signal reception. We can make accurate recommendations for better TV viewing when we service your set. Phone 255-0700 for assured satisfaction.

Larry Bierwirth of Maine West has thrown his name in among prep athletes who could win Illinois state athletic championships this year.

During Maine West's dual meet loss to Niles North last Friday evening, Bierwirth turned a 49.2 clocking during his portion of the 400 freestyle relay.

Bierwirth's timing over 100 yards tied him with three other prep swimmers for the state's fastest clocking this season.

The trio are John Martin of Rockford West, Andy Veris of New Trier West and Brian Linderoth of Rockford Guilford.

It also surged him into first place among all Herald area swimmers. Bierwirth surpassed Rick Fox of Prospect whose fastest time to date is 50.0 seconds. (See tomorrow's rankings.)

His tremendous clocking against Niles North was the early nightcap of an outstanding weekend for Bierwirth who's now qualified for state competition in the 200 and 100 freestyles.

On Saturday, Bierirth won the 100 freestyle at the Hinsdale Central College Events meet. He slowed a little, clocked in 50.0 seconds.

But even that would have tied him for second in Illinois with Fox of Prospect.

Bierwirth also finished second at Hinsdale in the 200 freestyle. His time was 1:50.6. And that places him fourth in state off the most recent compilation of times.

Maine West's other placing in the top six at Hinsdale was Rick Landuyt's fifth in the 50-freestyle.

The previous evening against Niles North, Maine trailed from the outset and never caught up as its dual meet record dipped to 5-3.

The winning Vikings pulled away from West for good during the 100 butterfly. Maine was trailing only 26-17 before that event.

But Niles North swept first and second places for a 36-18 lead as Maine's Bill Samp earned the lone third place point.

West's Garyt Dahl took firsts in the 200 and 400 freestyles. He also comprised one-fourth of Maine's winning 400 freestyle relay team.

Other members were Bierwirth who swam his fantastic 49.2 along with Landuyt and Tom Rasch.

Bierwirth earned firsts in 100 freestyle (52.0) and 200 individual medley (2:10.0). Those were the only other firsts Maine registered.

But Landuyt came tremendously close in the 50 freestyle losing by one-tenth of a second to Niles' Kramer (23.9).

Rick Weaver and John Stanonis went two-three for Maine in diving. Paul Dyer was third in 400 freestyle before George Erickson and Jeff Storer finished two-three in 100 backstroke.

Landuyt had a third in 100 breaststroke.

In other meets, Maine East got a close-up look at state contender New Trier West. The Blue Demons came away properly impressed, losing 71-24.

East also handled Rolling Meadows, 57-38, in a Saturday meeting. Results of that non-conference action will be found in Thursday's Herald.

Ron Davitt's swimming club managed just two firsts against the powerful Cowboys. Ken Meyer won the 200 individual medley in 2:10.8.

The ever dependable diving combination of Glen Sedjo and Tom McKervey again placed one-two in diving.

Those three placings accounted for 13 of East's 24 points against New Trier. Six second place points were evenly split by Meyer in 100 backstroke and Jerry Kosberg in 100 breaststroke.

Meyer's 59.7 timing marked his first sub-one minute clocking in 100 backstroke.

East's other points came from two thirds apiece by Matt Kane and Brad Kroll plus one by Carl Anderson.

New Trier's Veris put on a mighty showing and proved he's definitely one of Illinois' outstanding prepsters.

Indeed, Veris' 1:44.3 clocking in the 200 freestyle is the fastest time recorded this year anywhere in America. And his 3:48.1 against East in the 400 freestyle gives him a 10 second bulge over Illinois runnerup Jeff McBride of New Trier East.

Finally, Maine North was a 65-30 loser to Glenbrook North last Friday evening. Bob Retel's swimmers are now 2-6 this winter.

The Norsemen fell behind 7-0 when their 200 medley relay team was defeated by less than one-half second.

Maine never threatened afterwards, falling to 15-1, 21-4 and 27-7 deficits as the Spartans romped.

The Norsemen had just two first places — John Monaghan in butterfly and Don Polz in breaststroke.

Six second places fell to Maine, indicating a much closer meet than the final score dictates.

The brothers Rusk provided three seconds — Jeff in breaststroke and 200 individual medley while Paul was runnerup in 100 freestyle.

Monaghan finished runnerup in 50 freestyle. Other seconds were by Don Larson in backstroke and Randy Nelson in diving.

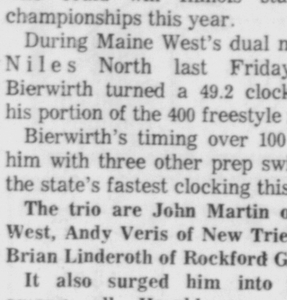

Jeff Rusk in 200 individual medley, Monaghan in 50 freestyle and Paul Rusk in 100 freestyle all were defeated by less than one-half second.

North's third place finishers were Nelson in 400 freestyle and Paul Rusk in 200 freestyle.

Central Suburban League meets dominate action this Friday night with North at Highland Park, Deerfield at West and Glenbrook South at East. Maine West's meet begins at 7:30 p.m., the others at 7 p.m.

On Saturday, Niles West will be at East in a 2 p.m. dual meet. Maine West and Prospect visit Arlington, also at 2 p.m.

Watch for more details on area swimming in Thursday's special section.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

IT'S DIFFICULT to say whether the writer of a back-of-the-book editorial really meant to take on the entire newspaper establishment of the State of Illinois, but the words used in a plea to "conservationists both within and without the Department of Conservation" to lend assistance to the continuation of "Illinois Conservation Today" could certainly be so interpreted.

"Illinois Conservation Today" is, according to the magazine itself, "the official publiction of the Illinois Department of Conservation." The December issue, which arrived in January, has articles of interest to Illinois sportsmen, including the explanation of a "Four-phase" development plan for public development of the Lake Michigan shoreline by the Department. It was written by Ted Kavadas, a department executive of broad experience.

Another interesting article was written by John Calhoun, the capable game biologist in the department. Calhoun's article deals with the continuing development of the wild turkey in Illinois.

There are also articles by other department heads, including one on waterfowl by George Arthur, with color pictures, yet!

In the case of the three articles mentioned, they are informative, interesting and optimistic, each filled with new and useful information.

Then comes the lobbying section, which is what invariably gets a "department" magazine into trouble. Executive Editor John Warren spent four pages of the magazine to eventually reach the point that the reason Illinois fishing isn't so hot is that there never is enough money to spend. He winds up the article pointing out that the state shouldn't depend on such private groups, such as Salmon Unlimited and others for "stop gap" measures designed to try to bolster a rather tiresome situation. He points out that the function is that of state government. Heck, most of us have suspected that for a lot of years!

Finally, on page 23, is the "editorial" pleading for a continued existence for the magazine.

Apparently Warren, and some others in the department, can't remember a magazine that the state personnel department used to publish. It, too, was financed by funds voted through the state legislature. It, too, began as a helpful organ of communication. Then, it quickly developed its own editorial approach to department problems and began, with rather forceful articles, to attempt to bring pressure on state legislators in matters of interest to the "personnel" readership.

The legislators, quite logically, decided that since the magazine now seemed to represent the interests of the employes, rather than the employers, the funding should come from the benefactors . . .the readers. One legislator put it this way: "I felt we were paying a rather high price to have ourselves lobbied by state employes. If they wish to lobby, that is their privilege. But I couldn't see spending tax money on their programs that were planned to benefit the personnel department and add to the taxpayers' burden."

"Illinois Conservation Today" states that the magazine is required as the department's prime means of public communication. They don't mention why, and how, their press relationship has deteriorated over the years (and years and years) so that they can no longer depend on the public press, radio and TV for exposure and explanation of programs and accomplishments.

The magazine, in fact, says that programs of conservation in Illinois have "little chance for public understanding" without their magazine. The explanation is that the programs involve "in-depth rationale and detailed description, which can best be handled (get ready) by a style of delicate illustrated writing that is provided by magazine-type media."

Well, contrary to popular opinion, most of us who hack around city rooms and political sub-stations such as the publicity department of the Department of Conservation, have been exposed to honest-to-goodness schoolhouses. Some of us can even read without moving our lips. There may even be a handful of writers somewhere in this big state, who are capable of understanding and expression in whatever style is required to inform our readers. Some of us might even be able to get an idea across without showing pictures every time.

One thing is certain; you don't get pictures from the Department of Conservation, although they seemed to have them available for their own magazine. Two of the articles, likewise, in the magazine have never been made available to the public press, perhaps because of our lack of in-depth rationale . . . or delicacy, or something.

Two more points, and then I'll stop taking this whole thing personally. The editorial claims that if the legislature will give it money to keep going, it can be supported wholly by subscribers in a matter of a year or two.

Hogwash! Only Consumers Report is wholly self-supporting. Even Readers Digest began accepting advertising. And Illinois Conservation Today is neither of those. It would, if it continues to require tax dollars to support it.

The next-to-last paragraph of the editorial assumes that the writer is speaking for the department personnel as he says they feel the magazine is in the public interest and that "the public's right to know must not be abridged."

This latter phrase is absolutely correct (if not original). Except that the magazine might not be necessary as a "means of communication" with the public if the department would simply learn to communicate with the press.

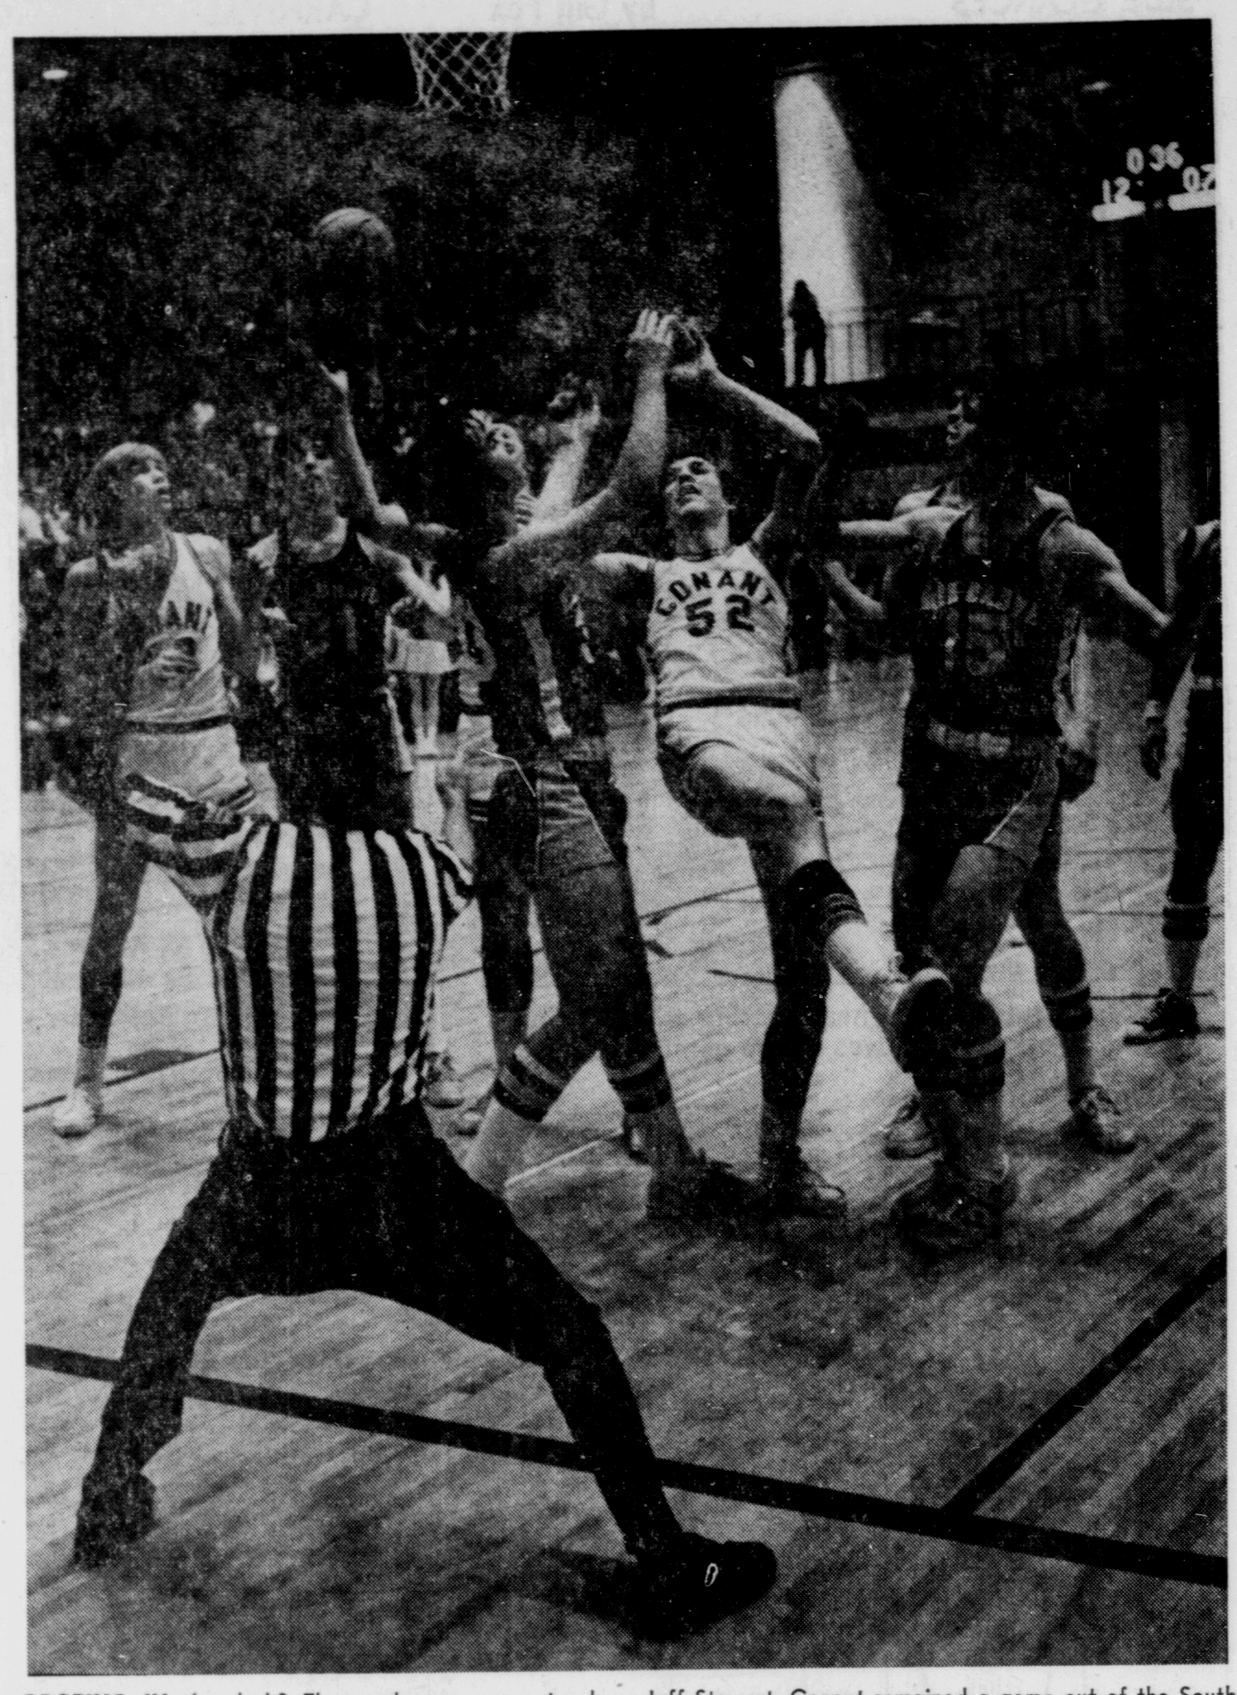

The public right to know won't be "abridged," because editors throughout the state, desk men and even lowly columnists are often capable of sifting through information and coming up with a fair and accurate approach to a story.

Why, some of us can even take "delicate illustrated writing" and make it interesting and readable.

GROPING IN the dark? Three players seem to be scrambling for this loose ball with a foul called. Scoreboard tells the stage of Friday's game. Left to right are Conant's Dave Sutherland, Elk Grove's Mike Millner and Bill Butler, the Cougar's Steve Irion and the Grenaiers Jeff Stewart. Conant remained a game out of the South Division lead with a 56-53 triumph after a heart-pounding finish which saw Elk Grove wipe out a 10-point deficit.
